INTO THE UNKNOWN

Now that the silly season is over, Christmas and new year receding into dim and hazy memories, what can we expect to look forward too in 1995? If there is anyone out there who can tell me, please write in with the information straight away. Seriously though, there is one question being asked by so many - "Will this be the year when contact will be made?". I wonder over the years how many times this question has been asked. Into the unknown we go once again.

PENTAGON

I am in no doubt that once again this year we will have more perplexing and intricate crop formations appearing for us to frown at scratching our heads with bewilderment. What will be the constant factor to run through the formations this year? In 1994 we were seeing plenty of scorpion shaped formations, with the constant theme of crescent moons being seen in many of the formations in Wiltshire and Hampshire. This is the time of year when many cropies are wondering what will be found during the first months of crop season in rape seed crop.

On the UFO front, things have already taken off within the first few weeks of January, including more mass sightings at Bonnybridge in Scotland, to be investigated in another issue - plus, hot news that President Clinton was briefed by top Pentagon personnel in the first week of the new year on increasing UFO activity within American airspace. News also surfaced within the first week of January that the British and American intelligence communities are aware of an alien installation just off the Shetland Islands. Apparently, it was discovered by American Naval submarines, and is connected to supposed alien mining being conducted off the coast of Iceland.

STEALTH SUBMARINE

As you may or may not know, Iceland was the last known location of the Top Secret American Naval Stealth Submarine before it disappeared early December time 1993 while monitoring the alien mining activities. While working aboard the passenger cruiser M/V Pacific Star in 1992, I along with other officers observed the Stealth Submarine leaving the San Diego naval base harbour entrance as we were leaving dock. We could only see a limited amount of the vessel above water as it glided silently out of the harbour. It could only be described as being of the oddest angular shape, and as black as coal. The submarine and crew were never recovered, and the families of the crew were never made aware of the circumstances surrounding its disappearance. We can be sure the answers are locked away in some filing cabinet somewhere within the Pentagon, and will continue to do so.

So I guess that we can look forward to quite an eventful 1995, the theme of which should be more talking, more information and most importantly, the truth must be told once and for all. In a time when the walls of democracy and society seem to be crumbling, we can only hope that the truth will rise triumphantly from the ashes like a glorious phoenix, and that man as a species of sentient life will be able to finally understand his place in the universe.

When they come crashing down

Incredible testimony of recovery of crashed alien spacecraft

I am fifty years of age and an engineer that has worked in the private sector, as well as with the American government. From 1975 to 1980, I was involved with several investigations having to do with E.T. material. Even though the project was very well covered, I am still very much surprised that Project Pluto and results have not surfaced yet. In as much as the project was handled by others, there was no question that the government was in full control. For security purposes, Project Pluto had five levels. Those who investigated one level had nothing to do with the next, and would only turn in the results of data of these findings to the next level, then go on to another area. No one that I knew ever had the results of two levels at the same time.

There was only one very rare exception to the rule which took place in 1975, and was in fact my very first assignment with the project. I was employed by a non-government firm that of course was directly involved with the government, and probably fronted for them on the projects.

GOVERNMENT RECORDS

I would assume that eventually government records could be made available to the general public, but not from the private sector. I'm not really sure. In any event, several others and myself were rushed to a rather remote place in upstate Pennsylvania.

We were informed that every thing was top secret, and had to remain that way. We were even housed in a hotel close by, and security people were assigned to us. Some type of aircraft had crashed in this area, and the government felt that it would be easier and faster to do all of their investigation right here rather than to move the remains of the wreck, and whatever evidence the soil may contain.

WRECK SITE

The wreck site was rather difficult to get to, however, we turned it into a construction site, clearing the area, and building two small and one very large metal pre-fab buildings over and around the wreck. Heavy equipment, materials, and workers were flown in and out on a daily basis.

We were moved from the hotel to some mobile homes that were brought in for us, and many more top level people who joined us. I might add that the local people who still lived some distance from the site, were led to believe that a large private corporation was preparing to build an electrical power supply for the area. But it was off limits to everyone in the area.

We were some of the first ones on the scene other than lots of security people. The wreck had already been covered by very large canvas blankets, and large nets were tented over head to protect the site from any possible air traffic. I did manage to get a very good look at the wreck on several occasions. My first thoughts were that it may have been an experimental air craft of our government, or perhaps the government of another.

It was later suggested to us that it was a new type of air craft of a foreign government, and it was a super hush hush project. That air craft was nothing like I have ever seen or probably ever will again. The crash site was also something quite different. The disturbed soil was about a hundred feet in diameter, although the craft was much larger in length. I only saw what appeared to be about two-thirds of the rear end and even that was about ten feet below the surface. When it crashed on about a 30 degree angle, it pushed all the earth back away from the craft itself. Almost as if the hole were made first, and then something half the size was put in place.

My best thought of this rather strange hole is that some kind of magnetic field had pushed all the earth away from the craft at impact. It was reasonable to assume that I was looking down at the rear end of the air craft, yet there was nothing to indicate that it had any kind of engine as we know it. Not even one little opening.

RADIO WAVES

I don't really like to use the term cigar, but since I could not see the front part, it certainly appeared to have once been shaped like a large cigar. That's by best description. If it was a craft from a foreign government, then we are in big trouble. I actually held one small portion of the wreck in my hand. Incidentally, there was only a very small reading of radio waves in the area. They were quite safe. There was on the other hand, a great deal of free magnetic energy in that area. It was very difficult using our instruments. It was very difficult just to establish the correct time. Every wrist watch was a different time.

The piece of physical evidence that I held in my hand, was a material that I really can't identify. It may have been torn from the front of the craft when it crashed. A few of us compared thoughts as to what it might be, but no one was really certain. None of us had ever seen anything like it before. It was about one square foot and about an inch thick. It weighed almost nothing, and one had the feeling that it may blow away if you let go of it and the wind increased.

SHELL OF THE CRAFT

It was the same color and texture of the large portion, so it was safe to assume that it was part of the shell of the craft. It weighed nowhere near enough to be any metal that we had ever seen. It even weighed less than any plastic that I had seen of a similar size. I tried to scratch it with a pocket knife, and even cut away a small piece of the edge, but the knife did nothing to it. The surface was clear as glass, and stronger than anything we had seen before. It was like trying to scratch the surface of glass with a feather. Of course, we had to turn it in to the security people.

After the site was secure, the first groups that included myself were taken away. There was a very thorough strip search prior to us being given jumpsuits, and put into a truck for the transportation to a waiting plane. We were taken to another area and debriefed before we were allowed to return to our normal way of life.

About three months later, a few of us returned to the site to remove the buildings, fill up the hole, and generally put the area back into the same shape as it may have been prior to the crash. We went through the same type of security search and debriefing as we had done the first time. Whatever was left of the craft had been removed and sent to an unknown destination.

Almost one year to the day, I was sent to another crash site. Everything was a repeat of the first time, except that there were six of us. Four of us were part of the first crash site, and the other two were new. This time the air craft was buried so deep into the lower side of a hill that we could not get a good look at it.

PROJECT PLUTO

The security arrangements were just about the same, and we constructed similar buildings around it. It was very close to a rerun of the first crash site. Only this time we were told, "as a matter of fact it was a top secret experimental air craft that had crashed. I could however, manage to see the rear end of the craft. It appeared to be the same type as the first. The code name of the project was Pluto, as it was the first also. Incidentally, that was in upstate New York, in 1976. I do not know if there were any "people" or life forms aboard.

Several years later, I had an occasion to be in the area of site #one. The bartender only recognized me because he brought in our first room service the first night we stayed there. There was no room service there, but he made his one and only exception to the rule for us. He asked me lots of questions which of course had no answers for, nor would I give any. He told me that he heard that there were lots of medical people on the site. He thought that rather odd for an electric power station. He assumed that there must have been some kind of an accident, or lots of waste material in the area. We let it go at that.

SECURITY

It appeared that security was very good, and no one had any idea that an air craft had crashed there. I suspect that the air craft was fifty feet in diameter and as long as two hundred feet. I could be wrong in the length. As I recall the under portion of aircraft #1 had more of a flat surface. It was difficult to see, but I do recall the difference in the portion of the under surface that I could see.

There were also a few interesting grooves on the top and side areas about twenty feet long. We had speculated that either a steering fin had been attached, or a place where it could slide through from the inside, similar to the type of system used to lower wheels on any air craft. First speculation!

NAVY EQUIPMENT

In 1978, I was again sent to a crash site. We arrived the day after the security people. This time the air craft landed in a lake in upstate Pennsylvania. We went through the same motions, and built several buildings on the edge of the lake to house the craft, once it was removed from the water. Lots of Navy equipment was flown in, and there were divers everywhere. The same magnetic field was present as in the first two incidents. There was no air craft.

I spent three weeks there in the event that the buildings had to be adjusted. It seems that the divers had located the exact spot that the air craft had rested on the bottom, but it was gone. There was lots of evidence on the beach that something very large had crashed into the lake causing the water of the lake to splash ashore, over thirty feet, and what was normally a rather clean lake, was suddenly a very large mudhole. After three weeks, I left and was subjected to the same type of security as the first two times.

I didn't have to return to dismantle the pre-fab buildings. I would think that it was done by others very soon there after. There was some thoughts at first that the craft may have been buried under the bottom of the lake, but by this time, we knew enough about the craft to know if that were the case. It was not - it just vanished. Perhaps it was not damaged and managed to fly away. That may sound silly, but I believe that it is a reasonable conclusion. There was some damage to the immediate area. Six large electrical transformers, and some other equipment were burnt out and had to be replaced by the electric company. The government took the electrical equipment and had it flown somewhere else.

In 1979, I was sent to the shores of southern Texas. The same type of situation, all the evidence led us to believe that whatever it was, it landed in the water and flew away.

EVIDENCE

I understand that over twenty men actually saw it go into the water, but the days that followed bore no fruit. The Navy divers had a good deal of evidence that some thing has made a very large recent gash on the bottom in about seventy feet of water.

The very same magnetic field was present, and every thing electrical in the immediate area was burnt out. By the end of 1979, I was sent back to the very same lake in Northern Pennsylvania. It was a duplicate incident as the first time we were there. It had landed in the lake and was gone. The same electrical items were again destroyed, and the same magnetic field was evident. I really have no physical evidence to prove one way or another the identification of the air craft. I can only examine what I have experienced and wonder! My opinion is another story.

I don't really believe that the air craft belongs to our Government or any other government on this earth. From 1975 to present, we would certainly have seen some kind of revolutionary change in our air craft.

CORPORATION

To date, I still have not seen any material to even slightly match the very first piece of physical evidence that I had examined. That alone, would have made a fantastic change in the material we use today. No corporation or government could keep that kind of material quality under cover for over twelve years, if they had invented it.

After twelve years we probably don't even know what it is, or how to make it. I am positive that at the very least, they have two of the air craft hidden somewhere, and probably have learned very little from them, other than they exist. However, the company that I was associated with has made some gigantic leaps forward in electromagnetic forces. Perhaps they did learn something from it after all.

If we wish to assume that these air craft are not from this earth, and are from way out there in space, then my goodness, the planet must be full of visitors. The air traffic alone, must be fantastic. It seems to me that who ever they are they have found it easier to land in the water rather than on our dry earth.

Perhaps it was designed to land on water or a very flat surface. I have never really had any feelings one way or another about E.T.'s. I had elected to deal with hard evidence only, that was prior to 1975.

For those few years afterwards, I could not help but interject some opinions into my brain. As I would rather deal with hard evidence only, I am forced to put all of this on a scale, and take a good hard look at the tilting of the scales. There is far too much here to ignore. I must confess that I had some what leaned towards the experimental air craft story. But as the years passed, it became evident that was only a cover story. Too much time has passed and our air craft are pretty much the same.

NEW AIR CRAFT

There is no doubt in my mind that we as well as others, are constantly experimenting with new air craft, however at this late date, I am reasonably certain that those crash sites were not made by anything that we are familiar with, and then again, I still kind of reserve that possibility. As you can see, I have many mixed feelings about it. In addition, I have no way of knowing if I had been on every crash site that occurred. There may have been many more during that period and many more since then.

I really don't know if any one had ever been removed from the two wrecks, that I had personally seen. Perhaps they were only mechanical flights. Perhaps the medical people were only there - just in case. And/or to test the wreck for any form of unknown bacteria prior to removing it. Their being present is not really evidence that a life form was found. It could go either way.

I just cannot imagine our government or any other keeping it such a secret, if in fact, they were not from this earth. It really serves no purpose that I can understand. It also appears to me that if they were from somewhere else that they mean us no harm. I would suspect that after all these years, if they meant us harm, we would most certainly know about it by now.

Even if they were only mechanical flights, the fact that they could get here at all...so many times, is certainly a feat in itself, and worthy of publication.

PHYSICAL EVIDENCE

If the fact that they managed to get here at all, and the physical evidence, the material that I examined is any indication of how intelligent they are, then I would feel safe in assuming that they have left us in the stone age. On a personal level, I have no fear of meeting or contacting such a being. In fact, the very first time I saw the craft, the thought had entered my mind. I didn't expect a being like Frankenstein to come walking out. And for a short time I had wondered what I would do if suddenly a door opened and some form of life came out. What the heck!

If it didn't look too bad I may have walked up and said hello just as I would to anyone else who may visit me. I would think that I would be more afraid of picking up some unknown form of bacteria than I would be of the life form itself. Well, today we can pick up

AIDS...so, as I put the germ fear aside. Yes, I would certainly try to be friendly once the first wave of fear passed me by.

DESTRUCTION

What I fear more than any visitor is that some farmer is going to get them with a shot gun and do more damage than we can or want to handle. Also, some cowboy policeman trying to shoot his first space man. Because of that I should think that our government would try to educate us as to the proper way to handle any such situation. That little bit of awareness and education may save our planet from destruction. If there is clear evidence that we are being visited by intelligent life forms, then the heads of government are by far crazier than I had imagined by trying to keep it a secret. The damage of hostile action on our part may not be repairable.

Because of that I am trying to share whatever information and evidence that I have which is in fact all first hand data. I have illustrated the evidence and information as it happened, and made note of where I speculated.

There are many items that I have not included in this article, only because this could turn into forty or fifty pages. At some time in the future, I will take my time and write every detail that I can remember. I'll also put it on tape for clarification.

CIGAR SHAPED

Incidentally, my experience in the E.T. world ended in 1980, when I changed positions. Have you had any reports of material that I examined belonging to an air craft from others? And the ever present magnetic field, do you have any reports from others similar to that? I have heard of others saying that they have seen a cigar shaped air craft, and I feel rather silly. Perhaps that's not the word. But, to the best of my knowledge and sight, it appeared to be just that. A cigar shaped craft. Please note that in both cases, I had never seen the front of the craft. I can only assume that the design was constant.

[E.D.'s Note-

The author of this article has requested to stay anonymous for the obvious reasons. A fortunate thing is that there have been a number of features both on television and on video like the X-Files and the movie Official Denial (out now at your local video shop, I thoroughly recommend it) have portrayed the crash landings of alien vehicles on Earth and the military response that follows illustrating the usual cover-up routines. This is taking the public a certain number of steps forward in understanding how plausible such a scenario is.

Just how much alien technology do the American military have stored away in secret installations we may never know, but one thing we can be sure of - a military department will have the priority of gleaning as much technology as possible for their own defense and weapons development, before considering aspects of possible medical and sociological benefits, it therefore stands to reason that it will be kept a secret!]

MIBs-MEN IN BLACK

A REVIEW OF THE MENACING STRANGERS

By Linda Harvey

A lot of people have heard of something about "MIBs" without really knowing any of the details. The purpose of this article is to acquaint readers with MIBs history, how they are related to the cover-up allegations, along with associated reference material and names of files which contain more current thoughts on the subject. When the Condon Committee was sampling public attitudes toward UFOs they gave this statement to a cross-section of the American Public: "A government agency maintains a Top Secret file of UFO reports that are deliberately withheld from the public." The respondents were supposed to answer TRUE or FALSE. A substantial majority, sixty-one percent, thought that the statement was true while only thirty-one percent said it was false. Among teenagers, the credibility gap was even wider - 73 percent believed the statement to be true. General opinion studies conducted by the Condon Committee, and other surveys about UFOs came up with the rather paradoxical facts that there were more people who believed in a conspiracy of silence about UFOs than believed in UFOs in the first place.

PARANOID

It has often been said that we Americans today are a bit paranoid; that we always tend to believe that something is out to get us, or something is being kept from us. It certainly seems that we were a bit paranoid about UFOs. Most people thought vaguely in terms of an Air Force conspiracy or a CIA conspiracy or even of a world-wide scientific conspiracy. It was generally acknowledged that the reason behind such a conspiracy was a desire on the part of those in power to hide the "truth" from the public because people would panic if they knew that we really were being visited by superior creatures from another world.

WAR OF THE WORLDS

Conspiracy theorists constantly hearkened back to the old "War of the Worlds" broadcast, and the panic it started. Such a belief, however, is rather too simple for the true connoisseur of conspiracies. He has long ago rejected the simple, straightforward Air Force-CIA-science establishment cover-up as too obvious, and really rather ridiculous. The conspiracy connoisseur pointed out quite correctly that no government or group, no matter how powerful, could possibly suppress so much sensational information for so long - no earthly group that is.

If the extraterrestrials WANTED to make themselves known then they would land in a central place, and all the feeble earthly cover-up would simply be blown away. It is out of this sort of background that the legend of the Men In Black arose. It concerns strange little men in dark suits who drive around in big shiny cars and harass people who claimed to have seen a UFO.

FLYING SAUCER BUREAU

The origin of the Men In Black legend can be pinpointed fairly exactly. Back in 1953 a man by the name of Albert K. Bender was running an organization called the International Flying Saucer Bureau (IFSB) and editing a little publication called Space Review that was dedicated to news of flying saucers. The IFSB had a small membership despite its rather grandiose title, and Space Review reached at best, no more than a few hundred readers. But they were all deeply devoted to the idea that flying saucers were craft from outer space. In common with other true believers, these saucer buffs were convinced that they were in possession of a great truth, while most of the rest of the world remained in darkness and ignorance. They felt very important, and thus it was with a sense of surprise, even shock, that they opened up the October 1953 issue of Space Review and found two unexpected announcements:

FLYING SAUCER MYSTERY

"LATE BULLETIN.

A source which the IFSB considers very reliable has informed us that the investigation of the flying saucer mystery and the solution is approaching its final stages. This same source to whom we had referred data, which had come into our possession, suggested that it was not the proper method and time to publish the data in Space Review." The second and more shocking item read: "STATEMENT OF IMPORTANCE: The mystery of the flying saucers is no longer a mystery. The source is already known, but any information about this is being withheld by order from a higher source. We would like to print the full story in Space Review, but because of the nature of the information we are very sorry that we have been advised in the negative." The statement ended with the ominous sentence, "We advise those engaged in saucer work to please be very cautious." Bender then suspended the publication of Space Review, and dissolved the IFSB. The tone of the announcements would have been familiar to anyone who had much experience with occult organizations. Occultists often claim they are in the possession of some great secret which, for equally secret reasons, they cannot reveal. Even the appeal, "please be very cautious" was not unique. It made those engaged in "saucer work" feel more important. After all, who is going to bother to persecute you if you are just wasting your time?

Shortly after Bender closed down his magazine and organization he gave an interview to a local paper [in] which he asserted that he had been visited by "three men wearing dark suits" who had ordered him "emphatically" to stop publishing material about flying saucers. Bender said that he had been "scared to death" and that he "actually couldn't eat for a couple of days.". Some of Bender's former associates tried to press for a more satisfactory explanation, but to all questions he replied either cryptically or not at all. This state of affairs created considerable confusions among the flying saucer buffs. What were they to think about such a strange story? Some were openly skeptical of Bender's tale. They said that his publication and organization were losing money and the tale of the three visitors who "ordered" him to stop publishing was just a face-saving gesture. Yet, as the years went by the "Three Men In Black" began to sound more respectable and they took on a life of their own. Some of Bender's friends first thought that the Men In Black were from the Air Force or the CIA, and indeed Bender's original statements do seem to sound like [the men could have been] government agents. But after a while the Men In Black began to assume a more extraterrestrial, even supernatural air.

VISITORS

Finally in 1963, a full decade after he first told of his mysterious visitors, Albert Bender elaborated further in a book called "Flying Saucers and the Three Men In Black". It was a strange, confused and virtually unreadable book that revealed very little in the way of hard facts, but did significantly enhance the reputation of the Men In Black as extraterrestrials. The book also introduced into the lore "three beautiful women, dressed in tight white uniforms." Like their male counterparts in black, the women in white had "glowing eyes".

UFO HISTORY

But even before the publication of Bender's book in 1963, the Men In Black (or MIBs as they were known to insiders) had already been reported to be visiting others besides Alber Bender. By now they have been reported so often that they have become an established part of the UFO history. The Men In Black, naturally enough, wear black suits. They also usually wear sunglasses, presumably to disguise their "glowing eyes". Most of them are reported to be short and delicately built with olive complexions and dark, straight hair. They are often described as "Gypsies" or "Orientals". Most MIBs are reported to travel in groups of three and usually ride around in shiny, new, black cars - often Cadillacs. These cars are even supposed to "smell new". Sometimes the MIBs pose as investigators from the CIA or some other government agency. They may flash official-looking credentials but these can never be checked out.

FRIGHTEN

Occasionally the MIBs display badges with strange emblems on them, or have unrecognizable symbols painted on their cars. The purpose of the visits seems to be to get people who have seen UFOs to stop talking about them, of somehow to confuse and frighten the witnesses. People who worry about MIBs tend to lump all sorts of mysterious visitors into the category, even if they don't wear black, have no glowing eyes nor show any of the familiar MIB characteristics. The primary qualification for the Men In Black is that they be of unknown origin, and that they appear to act oddly and vaguely menacing. Some of those who write about UFOs and other strange phenomena rather casually mention "countless" cases where people have been visited by Men In Black. In reality these "countless cases" are difficult to pin down. In fact, there really seems to be a rather small number of MIB cases where there are any details available at all.

TIP OF THE ICEBERG

The impression given by the writers is that the publicized cases represent only "the tip of the iceberg". Beyond these, say the writers, are many "more sensational" cases, the details of which cannot be revealed for a variety of reasons. In any event solid evidence for a vast number MIB cases is lacking. But we are, after all, dealing with beliefs as much as with reality, and 'impression' is an important one. Often the MIB cases that we know of are not quite as sensational as Albert Bender's three visitors, but they are unsettling nevertheless. Take the case of California highway inspector Rex Heflin. On August 3, 1965, Heflin claimed to have taken a series of Polaroid photos of a UFO from his car while parked near the Santa Ana Freeway. The pictures were quite clear and they showed an object shaped rather like a straw hat apparently floating above the ground. These pictures got a great deal of publicity, and are still among the most frequently reprinted UFO photos. Heflin's story was investigated by the Air Force shortly after it became known. It was also looked into by investigators for the Condon Committee during their inquiry. (The committee investigator produced a pretty fair imitation of the photos by suspending the lens cap of his camera in front of his car with a thread and photographing it through the car window). In addition, a host of un-official UFO groups tackled the case in their own way.

OFFICIAL INVESTIGATORS

There was considerable suspicion on the part of official investigators that the photos had been faked, but this was difficult to prove or disprove without the original prints. Being Polaroid photos, there were no negatives. Heflin said that he had turned over three of the four originals to a man (or two men - the stories differ) who claimed that he represented the North American Air Defence Command (NORAD). NORAD denied that they had ever sent out an investigator, or indeed, that they had the slightest interest in the photos. The mysterious person who is alleged to have taken the photos has never been identified.

SPACE SYSTEMS DIVISION

On October 11, 1967, over two years after Heflin's original sighting, but while the Condon investigation was going on, Heflin reported another encounter with mysterious visitors. A man who said that he was Captain C.H. Edmonds of the Space Systems Division, Systems Command, a unit of the Air Force that had been involved in the first investigation of his UFO photos, came to his home. During the interview the man who called himself Captain Edmonds asked Heflin if he wanted his original photos back. When Heflin said no, the man was "visibly relieved". Inexplicably, the man then began discussing the Bermuda Triangle. This is an area near the island of Bermuda where a number of mysterious disappearances of airplanes and ships have been reported. These disappearances have been linked by some to UFOs, though the connection does not seem very convincing. While this strange interview was going on, Heflin said that he saw a car parked in the street. It had some sort of lettering on the front door but he could not make it out. To quote the Condon Report description of the incident, "In the back seat could be seen a figure and a violet (not blue) glow, which the witness attributed to instrument dials. He believed he was being photographed or recorded. In the meantime his FM multiplex radio was playing in the living room and during the questioning it made several loud audible pops." All attempts by the Air Force, various civilian researchers and the Condon Committee itself to find "Captain C. H. Edmonds" failed. As far as can be determined, no such person has ever existed.

WIRED INDIVIDUAL

A much more bizarre story was supposedly told by an unnamed family who had sighted a UFO. Sometime after the sighting they said that they were visited by a very strange individual. Ivan Sanderson, who reported the incident in his book "Uninvited Visitors", described the individual thus: "almost seven feet tall, with a small head, dead white skin, enormous frame, but pipe-stem limbs." This oddity said he was an insurance investigator and that he was looking for someone who had the same name as the husband of this family. He indicated that the man he was looking for had inherited a great deal of money. Continued Sanderson; "This weird individual just appeared out of the night wearing a strange fur hat with a visor and only a light jacket. He flashed an official-looking card on entry but put it away immediately. Later on when he removed his jacket he disclosed an official-looking gold shield on his shirt which he instantly covered with his hand and removed."

GREEN WIRE

The strange visitor asked some personal questions about the family, but nothing at all about the UFOs. The creepiest part of the whole affair came when the eldest daughter of the family noticed that the "investigator's" tight pants had ridden up his skinny leg, and she saw a green wire running out of his sock, up his leg and into his flesh at two points. After the interview, the "investigator" got into a large, black car which contained at least two other persons, and seemed to disappear on an old dirt road that led from the woods. The car drove off into the night with its headlights off. In addition to scaring and intimidating people, visits of MIBs are also supposed to produce a variety of unpleasant physical symptoms. Bender said he suffered from headaches, lapses of memory and was plagued by strange odours following the first visit of the Men In Black. Others who say they have had similar visitations have made similar complaints. Another eerie thing attributed to MIB types, is the ability to look like anyone they want to. Some UFO researchers claim that MIBs have been posing as THEM in order to silence potential witnesses. John Keel, who has written a number of UFO books, said that he had encountered people who refused to believe that he was who he said he was. "Later contactees (those who say they are, somehow or other, in contact with the space people) began to whisper to local UFO investigators that the real John Keel had been kidnapped by a flying saucer and that a cunning android who looked just like me had been substituted in my place. Incredible though it may sound, this was taken very seriously, and later even some of my more rational correspondents admitted that they carefully compared the signatures on my current letters with pre-rumour letters they had received."

STRANGE ENCOUNTERS

As we said earlier, each era tries to explain strange encounters in terms of its own system of beliefs. I have been struck by the similarity of some of these MIB cases with medieval tales of encounters with the devil or some of his demons. The devil, for example, was very often described as a man dressed in black. The ability to change shape and appear in any form was commonly attributed to demons, who were able to take the shape of a victim's friends and neighbours and even assume the likeness of angels and saints. Many of those who said that they had met the devil complained of the same range of physical symptoms reported by those who encountered the MIBS.

HAITIAN BELIEF

The shiny new cars associated with MIBs are reminiscent of the Haitian belief in an evil society of sorcerers called "zobops". Haitians say that if you see a big, new car going along the road without a driver, it's under the control of the "zobops", and you had better not try to interfere with it. Now, I am not trying to imply that the MIBs are agents of the devil, or vice versa, anymore than I would try to say that the little green men from Mars were really the fairy folk of past generations. It is just that our visions and fears often remain the same over the ages, and only our explanations for them change.

DEVIL

Of course, encounters with the devil during the Middle Ages were generally more frightening and overpowering experiences than current experiences with MIBs. Everybody believed in the devil, while today generally people do not believe in the creatures from outer space. Medieval society took devil stories in dead earnest, and anyone who made such a report might find himself facing a painful death at the stake. The worst one can expect from reporting a MIB encounter is a certain amount of disbelief and ridicule. In general, MIB tales are considered too bizarre even to be reported in local newspapers. They are published only in magazines and books put out for and by UFO enthusiasts. Usually such publications are privately printed and are read by only a few hundred. A few books however, have been issued by major publishers and have reached a far wider audience. These cases are also occasionally discussed on radio and TV talk shows, so the information gets around more widely than one might think.

KIDNAPPING

A lot of people have heard of "something" about MIBs without really knowing any of the details. There is one incident which bore certain similarities to the traditional MIB case that did receive very wide publicity. This is the story of the "kidnapping" of Betty and Barney Hill. While most of the MIB cases do not appear directly to involve a UFO, this one does. The couple were driving to their home in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, from Canada on the night of September 19, 1961. They were on an isolated stretch of road when they spotted what they thought was a flying saucer above them. Then followed two completely blank hours in their lives. They could remember nothing from the time they saw the UFO until a time two hours later when they found themselves in their car several miles down the road from where they had seen the UFO. For months after this experience both of the Hills suffered from severe psychological distress. Finally they consulted a psychiatrist, who hypnotized them, and under hypnosis the Hills revealed a strange story of being kidnapped and taken aboard a flying saucer. The Hills didn't rush out and try to get publicity about their experience or write a book about it. In fact, they were remarkably quiet. But the incident did ultimately come to the attention of author John Fuller, who had already written an extremely popular UFO book. With the co-operation of the Hills and of their psychiatrist, Fuller produced another best seller, "The Interrupted Journey", which was first serialized in the now defunct 'Look' magazine.

THE INTERRUPTED JOURNEY

Though the book is carefully hedged with qualifications that the experience described might be a hallucination or a dream rather than a "totally real and true experience", the distinct impression left by The Interrupted Journey on thousands of readers was that the experience was a "totally real and true" one. The people or entities that were supposed to be controlling the spaceship that kidnapped the Hills can be squeezed into the Men In Black lore. Barney Hill described one of his captors as looking like "a red-headed Irishman", hardly a MIB type. But another wore "a shiny black coat", with a black scarf thrown about his neck. Under hypnosis Hill drew a picture of "the leader" of his abductors. It is a strange insect like face with a wide, thin mouth and huge slanting eyes that seem to go halfway around the creatures' head. The eyes were the most frightening part of the saucer inhabitant's strange physiognomy. Once during a hypnotic session with the psychiatrist Barney Hill cried out in terror, "Oh, those eyes! They're in my brain!" Glowing eyes, you will recall, are considered some of the key characteristics of the typical Man In Black.

BRUTAL EXAMINATION

Unlike many of the books written by or about people who say that they had encountered the inhabitants of UFOs, The Interrupted Journey carries real conviction. One gets the feeling that the Hills and Fuller are intelligent, sincere and sane people who really believe that what they described is what actually did happen. So this idea was planted in the minds of thousands of readers of The Interrupted Journey: UFOs can land, the extraterrestrials can kidnap ordinary people, subject them to a degrading and almost brutal examination and then wipe all memory of the incident from their minds, leaving behind only an unexplained sense of anxiety bordering on panic. Well, what does all of this mean? Are we being invaded by some weird bunch of extraterrestrials who have in the words of the "Shadow" radio show, "the power to cloud men's minds"? Frankly the evidence does not support such an alarming conclusion. Are all the stories hoaxes and hallucinations? Psychiatrists could certainly have a field day with many of these accounts. Symptoms such as loss of memory, severe anxiety and other unpleasant reactions strongly suggest that many of those who report such experiences are in a disturbed psychological state, though they would claim the disturbance was caused by the encounter with the strange visitor. In any event they do not make the most reliable of witnesses. Some of the other stories are almost certainly sheer fiction, made up either by some practical joker or by a writer of sensational books. Whether all the stories are real of unreal is not a question that we can answer conclusively here. The point is that we Americans are building a mythology for ourselves, just as the Europeans did with their tales of dragons, ogres and elves, and just as all people have done in all parts of the world in all ages.

SUPERSTITIOUS NOTIONS

We have often prided ourselves on being a practical, hardheaded, no-nonsense sort of people who were immune to the irrational fears and superstitious notions of less clear-sighted and realistic folk. This proposition is demonstrably untrue and perhaps we are better off for it. Our monsters, our space people, even if they don't exist, if indeed they are rather silly, also make life more interesting and exciting.

AREA 51

A TOURIST GUIDE

Marc Hawkins, a fellow Truth Seeker based in Los Angeles is an expert on the Ultra Top Secret American military installation known as Area 51, also known as Dreamland and Groomdry Lake in Nevada. He often receives correspondence asking for advice about the base and how to get a good look at it, so he has written a humorous little guide on what to do once you reach the installation.

Quotes from an anonymous letter on E-Mail.....

I was wondering if anyone knew anything about Area 51 (Groom lake, The Box, the Air Forces secret Air Base) Because I plan on going there! Or, is there another newsgroup that I may have overlooked for this? And, How the heck can I identify an "Aurora?"

Yes you can go there, the Base guards always welcome tourists, make sure to go at night carrying lots of camera gear, don't bother going around the perimeter just waltz straight to the main gate, you'll find the guards most helpful. When they say "Where the hell do you think you are going???", remember this is just their way of welcoming you, they don't get too many visitors, so they will probably give you extra special treatment, pretending not to want to let you in, just make a dash past them and run as fast as you can. They will yell and scream "Halt or we'll shoot", but don't worry, this is a long honoured custom at Area 51, make your way straight for the hangars.... You find after a little chase they will catch you and give you the the standard greeting consisting of light body blows with their long metal welcoming sticks. After this enjoyable full body massage your guides will bring you to see the base commander, remember to pretend not to speak english, instead try jibbering some russian words, and don't forget to constantly struggle and try to escape, this all adds to the fun, and the guards will appreciate you're liveliness....and will reward you with further body messages. It's customary during your visit to place a small gift as a token of appreciation under any aircraft you manage to get to, favourites are usually wind-up bedside alarm clocks, planting these will get you true VIP treatment. You may even be offered a wonderful tour of the Dulce base nearby, where you will be escorted in a comfortable bus with unique blacked out windows to protect your eyes from the sun. Once there, you will be given a comprehensive tour of the liquifying vats of biological fluid and if you are really, really lucky, you might just end up coming face to face with the odd alien working at the underground facility. During this time, you will be persuaded by the entertaining security people to tell them all about yourself and your family and your reasons for taking a trip out to Area 51, they will do this by warmly pushing clenched fists to your face and stomach, and leaving you for extended periods in nice but sparse rooms with no light and unfortunately no food. So visit Area 51 soon! Better still, bring all your friends from work on the trip, just appear in the middle of the night, you don't need to reserve or phone ahead. Have fun!

New UFO waves...

It was reported in the news that sightings of Triangular shaped craft have been made over Liverpool on November 4th and in a still active wave over Colchester from November 6th. This information was confirmed to me by Phillip Mantle of BUFORA and Anne De Boisgelin of QUEST INTERNATIONAL. Other Disc and bright light activity over Wiltshire recently in East Kennet, and Silbury Hill as well, where one group of people saw a set of lights which grouped together into one ball of light before "switching off". UFO reports are still coming through concerning disk and triangular craft sightings in Bonnybridge in Scotland. (Now, for the weather - ED)

New film footage of Roswell Incident...

Recently Mr Reg Presley, UFO and Crop Circle researcher stated on morning television that he had seen 16mm camera footage that was taken of an autopsy of an Alien, made in Roswell New Mexico after a famous documented UFO crash. TV Hosts, Anne & Nick were astounded by the information given by Mr Presley who was only supposed to be on the show to talk about crop circles. The footage was shown to him in London by a film producer who is looking to make a documentary on the Roswell crash. Also appearing on the program was crop circle investigator Busty Taylor who managed once more to peak the UK's interest in crop circles by showing the intriguing magnetic crop, attaching itself to a speaker magnet. Not so easy to hoax eh? We hope to bring you more on the footage story as it develops. (Doug and Dave must be getting very clever.. Snigger)

Stargate, the movie...

There is talk at the moment in the computer network "Internet" of there being subliminal messages being used in the film "Stargate." People have reported seeing words behind pictures and of feeling unusual sensations when watching the film. Subliminal messages are currently banned in most parts of the world but were rumoured by some to have also been used in the blockbuster film "Close Encounters Of The Third Kind." I have seen the film and cannot say that I saw anything myself although I may have been enjoying the film too much to notice, maybe next time.

There is also much bad feeling in the United States about the film due to it's representation of the Pyramids being created by Aliens. Coloured people have maintained that they alone built the pyramids and some are angry that the film tries to take away their achievement. Makers of the film are heard to have said that the film was intended as fiction but with a basis in some research which is being done at the moment lending credence to the alien-construction theory. They also pointed out that it was the native peoples of the Nile who did create the pyramid in the film which included Numbian looking peoples but under the guidance of an alien being. Will the same feeling come forth in the United Kingdom now the film has been released? Still a brilliant film in my opinion. When you see it, look out for the grey who is the arch fiend!!

Passenger airline in near miss with triangular UFO....

The incident ocured on the 6th of January, 17 minutes before the British Airways Boeing 737 was due to touch down at Manchester Ringway Airport. Captain Roger Wills and First Officer Mark Stuart cowered back into their cockpit seats anticipating a head-on collision with the huge triangular craft while travelling at a height of 13,000 ft over the Pennines. The UFO turned and went past the right hand side of the aircraft, disappearing immediately.

The 60 passengers on board were all unaware of the UFO. Air Traffic control radioed the pilots that they were the only traffic in the area when they requested information about the mysterious craft. Colleagues of Capt. Wills have said that in a verbal description he gave to them, the craft was "like nothing I've ever seen, it was immense.."

British Airways are investigating and have sent reports to the Civil Aviation Authority. (And to Rudloe Manor no doubt.)

Food for thought

Our Truth Seekers Guru, known only as Pear, speaks out!!!

No one who has seen these phenomena can fail to be impressed by the sheer size and symmetrical perfection illustrated. Few who have stood inside one will deny the presence of a "special" kind of feeling experienced at the time, though the intensity of such feelings varies considerably from person to person.

I know of persons who claim that such an experience has changed the whole of their lives in a very benign way and of others who feel such horror that nothing in the world would induce them to enter such a formation (the latter being a very small minority) So, what is the true meaning of these symbols, will we ever be able to decipher them or, as Colin Andrews asserts in his very excellent video on the subject, will the meaning remain hidden from us?

Defies Explanation.

Let us discount the relatively small percentage of hoax circles, very obvious and easily identifiable as such, and examine some of the more serious hypotheses put forward as explanations of the majority who's perfection of form and absence of crop damage defies explanation as to means of construction. One theory put forward is that it is a manifestation of the pain experienced by Mother Earth as a result of the senseless, cruel, grasping and selfish rape and destruction of her beauty and natural resources, however far fetched this may sound one cannot deny that such things as Ley lines, tide irregularities and changing weather patterns as well as satellite photographs all give clear indication & condemnation of the criminal damage perpetrated by man on our planet in the name of progress.

Extra Terrestrial Intelligence

By far the most popular theory put forward is that some extra terrestrial intelligence is trying to communicate with us, credence is given to this theory by the many sightings of moving lights, forms and other aerial activity in the areas where crop circles either already exist or subsequently appear. Perhaps someone up there is trying to get through to us, if so why choose this method, is it because the symbols are huge enough and interesting enough to arrest the attention of a large number of people and would be difficult to hide should anyone consider hushing it up?

Most observers agree that these phenomena first appeared as just plain circles and tell us that they have now evolved into complex shapes, Pictograms and geometric symbols etc as this is a logical progression to the human mind. Is there another side to the same coin?

If one is trying to teach something to a child or to some one/thing one assumes to be of a lesser intelligence and it is obvious that you are not "getting through" does one then move on to more complex lessons, or would one try to simplify the first lesson to the point where they may understand?

As a "For instance", suppose you drew a circle to represent a head or face and it was not recognised as such, wouldn't it simplify the illustration if you added a few straight lines as arms, legs and body to make a matchstick figure? Just a thought. Is it possible that the tutors may be so superior in intelligence that they assumed that the symbolism of the early circles would be readily understood and that, realizing that their assumption was incorrect are now trying to simplify their forms to establish our levels of understanding?

Are the Pictograms a "Mind trigger" or "Key" as has been suggested? Remember that, if this theory is correct then the teachers are trying to apply their own non human thought processes in an effort to communicate with us. On the other hand of course it is just possible that someone wise understood the original message and is keeping quiet about it, consequently the symbolism could be increasing in complexity, what a thought, no one could possibly want to conceal such information could they - could they ????

SECRECY

PART TWO

BY MATTHEW WILLIAMS

On Christmas day Paul Damon and I had our lives threatened at what is proving to be Britains most Top-Secret base.

On 25th December 1994, Paul Damon and I decided to make a yuletide visit to Britain's favourite Ultra Top Secret base - Rudloe Manor near Corsham in Wiltshire. We arrived at 17.00hrs and drove around the lower perimeter as best we could. I was driving but stopped the car periodically to take the odd slide photo, for use in conferences and lectures. In passing a stone wall I noticed a quite peculiar feature - outside the fencing of the manor there was a small stone shed which had a small black aerial on the top of it. As this shed was inside M.O.D. property, but still outside any fences I still thought it would have been silly to get out to have a look on foot. Reports in Tim Good's book "Above Top Secret" state that he was picked up for walking outside the area by "men who came out of nowhere."

Instead of a fence jump, we decided to drive around and see if there were any other vantage points to view the base. By this time we had come again to the main road entrance to the base. I remembered the times that I had been followed by cars and vans that had then gone back inside this entrance (See Truth Seekers issue 1). Looking at the entrance, which was a road leading inwards to a further checkpoint we saw a sign stating that from the driveway onwards was subject to the official secrets act. I thought about this and decided that there were lots of other places I had been to which had been subject to the official secrets act but allow your movement around inside them, as long as you stay to the roads!

One such place is Porton Down, the Chemical and Bio-Chemical warfare research and development base, which has a main road straight past the base which is all M.O.D. Official Secrets Act property with displayed Anti Photography signs. Rudloe Manor has no Anti-Photography signs so our being there on a photo mission does not break any rules per se. I explained to Paul why I thought we could proceed inside the base, even if it meant questions being asked by the authorities. (Well infact it was more of a spur of the moment "go on, lets get in there and see if we get caught" type of attitude. He agreed with what I was saying and so we drove inside.

On the road up to the guardhouse there are speed bumps, and the road splits off into two driveways for visitors (?) and badged personnel. Although the area is fenced off we managed to pass a "husband and wife" walking a dog. This is very interesting because I have been informed that sometimes "people out for a walk" are often used for cover for security near sensitive bases. (Paul and I are involved in an active investigation of another base at the moment which lends credence to the dog walking theory. (It may sound crazy but if you had seen what we have seen going on at this other secret base, you would agree with this!)

Just before the Rudloe 1 guardhouse was a dual lamp Infra Red camera watching us on our drive up to the guardhouse. We drove near the road split but chose neither, instead reversing the car into a dirt track and then started to take photos of the guardhouse. All of this was obviously observed from the guardhouse by a security man who was joined by a soldier with an automatic machine gun. The soldier was playing peek-a-boo from round the doorway and did not venture forth. This probably means that security of the guardhouse and Rudloe is so important that the security guard must be used to investigate suspicious circumstances and not the soldier. The security guard made a quick phonecall and then stepped outside the guardhouse. He very slowly walked over to our car keeping a close eye on us, after all we could be I.R.A. as far as he was concerned.

The conversation that now follows is an approximation and not verbatim due to the visit not being planned in any great detail and subsequently we did not have a tape recorder with us.

Firstly guard the said "Hello", whilst the soldier had now started to move slowly out of the guardhouse and towards a forward position thinking he was obscured by the security guard. The guard asked us what we were doing and we explained that we were UFO researchers who were interested in the base for it's UFO analysis sections. He seemed to know what we were talking about, although he decided to answer this by stating that all Low Flying Complaints and Air Accidents were reported to and investigated from Rudloe. (First time admission!) We then stated that we believed there was a lot more going on than just standard aircraft reports. To this he gave no reply but instead told us that this was also where all the Security Vetting was done. Does this mean M.I.5, M.I.6, and higher agencies use Rudloe Manor as a headquarters for all intelligence information checking? Another first time admission!

We asked the guard if he knew about the "Underground Town" supposedly beneath Rudloe Manor or Rudloe Manor Site 2. (Private research and also the Television Programme "Scofields Quest" have made mention of the Underground Town complex) He stated that there was a quarry at Rudloe site 2 but from what he had seen, it was simply a quarry and no more. Paul pointed out that if it were just a quarry then surely it would not represent a threat to national security to let the Scofields Quest cameras in for a look. He stated that this was not the way the M.O.D. worked and that the television crew were misguided. I reminded the guard that he would probably not be allowed to know about such an underground facility if one did exist due to the high secrecy surrounding it. He party agreed but still tried to convince us that there was nothing at Rudloe Site 2 but a quarry. Why do the R.A.F. operate a quarry? Does it have something to do with weapons storage, and if so one would expect some sort of underground storage area inside the quarry. There is a weapons storage facility next door to Rudloe Site 2, so we can assume that this is the case. SO how big an underground facility? The questions go on.

I would rather go with what I have heard by way of leaked information from staff who built the underground "town" than the official denial given by the government.

Whilst quietly engaged in this low key but interesting conversation Paul called to my attention a white van that had raced up the driveway and parked itself in a blocking position in front of my car. The doors slid open and two soldiers emerged armed with semi automatic machine guns. The driver of the vehicle quickly got out and ordered his men to stand guard over our vehicle by motioning to them with his hands. The driver then came over to our car and leaned in and said "Good day gentlemen," with a nod to the security guard who then departed. The driver was dressed in camouflaged gear and appeared by his rank to be a sergeant. He did not identify himself directly.

We were asked many questions about our being there and who we were. We did our best to provide as much information as we could using our gleaned information about the base and it's activities and how all of this fitted into UFOLOGY. After our Oscar winning performance, this stone faced cold war hero then proceeded to declare that he was "Not satisfied with our explanation and he would need to see proper identification and would be making security checks with "Civvy" police as to our status."

Again we did our best to help and gave him as much I.D. as we could, including my B. U. F. O. R. A. membership card. Just before he left to make his checks he made the following disturbing statement, "I am going to check your details. Do not get out of your car whilst I am gone, do you understand?" US - "Yes, no problem" "Do not attempt to drive away in the vehicle whilst I am gone, do you understand?" US - "We won't go anywhere." "Because if you do try to get out of the vehicle OR try to drive away you WILL BE TAKEN OUT OF CIRCULATION!" (my emphasis added).

Both Paul and I were stunned at this. What law had we broken and what powers did this man have to keep us there simply for going up a driveway and taking photo's in an area that we were allowed to do so?

Whilst the Sergeant was away at the guardhouse one of the soldiers standing guard paced near our car and we got his attention in order to have a talk. He told us that we had got the whole base on full alert and there was a real stir. We said that we were sorry but we could not see that we had done anything wrong. We asked him questions about UFO's - had he seen any, did he know what went on at Rudloe. We ended up filling him with good information and he did come back with the enigmatic statement of "Well who knows what they get up to, but I am not allowed to say anything anyhow." This was said with a knowing tone in his voice.

When the sergeant returned he said that our details had checked out but he was not happy with us being there. He told us that we were not allowed to take photos as it was prohibited. I disagreed and stated that there were no anti photography signs posted so there was no restriction. He argued that there were signs posted and that I had not seen them. I said that I had checked very carefully that there were no anti photography signs up before taking photo's, to which he submitted, but then went on to say that in future we should seek the permission of base commanders of any base that we wish to take photographs of. He also said that the base commanders would more than likely not give us such permission and that if we came back to this base in the future to take photos we would be blocked!

I think the challenge has been set and we may have another Groom Lake on our hands. The trouble with this Groom Lake is that they will try to stop you taking photo's with what appears to be no legal power to do so... Cameras at the ready I say.

I do agree now that in future it may be polite to advise the base commander of our intentions in order not to start any major security alert but there will obviously be times that we will not want to give such information due to the time lost in perhaps securing important photo's.

So we left Rudloe Manor and started on our way back to Alton Barnes. We were followed back part of the way but got rid of our tails by driving round and round roundabouts so they knew we weren't having any of it.

One of the vehicles that followed us was a police car, and yes they do have police cars at Rudloe Manor ready for enforcing police powers or what ever they get up to in their MI5 secret squirrel activities. It is interesting to point out that the fleet of security vehicles that Rudloe possesses is easy to see by driving by the base. Most are white and unmarked. These are easily converted by putting signs on the sides into all manner of trade vehicles, such as Bloggs Window cleaners etc, for covert activity. (See Truth Seekers Review edition one for a story of how I was followed by one such vehicle which I then followed all the way back into the base.)

If they are this interested in security of the base then it is obvious that they are hiding something good there. I know of no other obvious base which takes such measures. In our conversation with the sergeant, Paul fired the question of why Rudloe Manor was the only U.K. base which still had a state of emergency called "Bikini Black Alpha", which he knew previously from an inside source which signifies ultimate threat paranoia coupled with the security forces being given live ammunition in sub automatic machine guns. The Sergeant was plainly taken aback by this question as it is supposed to be an "Official Secret", and all he could pipe up was "Because it is!".

Looking back Paul and I wish now that we had put on Irish accents and asked where they kept the bombs. This would have seen us inside the base and given us a damn good look of the inside with a probable free meal. (And a possible head massage with thier peace sticks?) Perhaps not.

If anybody is interested in viewing the base, read Tim Goods book, "Above Top Secret", or you can get in touch with us and we may be able to help advise you. Always make sure that you check what the security level is, as they may decide to make the driveway off limits and then put up the anti-photography signs after all. Don't use this as a guide on what to do there, use your own initiative and keep yourself abreast of the legal situation and your rights in case you do get into trouble. With that aside you should be able to get a damn good look at this interesting place. Have fun and be sure to let this publication know what you see or hear, or experience, we could well want to publish it. In issue 3 of Truth Seekers Review, we will be publishing the photographs "we should not have taken".

It stands to reason that it is about time a concerted effort was put together to expose the secrets of a base the government and military are too ashamed to talk about therefore deeming them secret, or above top secret as the case maybe. Paul and I have carried on where Timothy Good finished, and I can assure you that this will not be the last report on R.A.F. Rudloe Manor, the most secret base in Britain.

(Editor Update... Just before going to press we have received new information on Rudloe Manor. Once verified we will bring you this in the next issue! - MW)

[For those of you who dont know, vetting for Secret Positions is done in two ways, positive vetting and negative vetting, in both cases every part of your history is researched along with extra vetting, in your family history. Positive research is looking for all your good points and making sure there are no glaring bad points, and then judging your merits against other applicants for the position. Negative vetting takes note of all bad points, and you have, and psychological profiles are made up from your records and determine if you are safe to have the position based on just how bad your "bad" score is. Squeaky clean is usually required and even school reports have been known to get you rejected. Most people cannot get in to secret projects from the street - they have to have some sort of military or civil service record which details their ability to conform. Those who can probably jump in directly from the street are those who belong to special groups (Freemasons, high ranking church officials or friends of the state such as royals or successful businessmen etc.) Most of these are tested for character defects.]

REDISCOVERING ANCIENT KNOWLEDGE

PART TWO

PAUL DAMON

In the beginning, before mysterious gods arrived from the skies seeking to populate the earth, the Aborigines of Australia believed the Earth was a barren and featureless globe. They also believed that the gods that arrived from the skies were the Aboriginal ancestral Beings. Before terraforming the world and creating all of the species of plants and animals, these beings created the geographical features through their movements and adventures upon the planet. This was "Dreamtime", an idyllic time when Australia was an Eden filled with gentle animals, plentiful food supplies, and sweet water. Here early man flourished and became the intellectual aristocrat of the prehistoric world. Governed by a logical foundation of laws laid down by supernatural ancestors, thousands of generations of Aborigines lived in perfect harmony with their surroundings and with each other. For what is said to be 100,000 years the Australian tribes were seldom in want. Their economic system afforded to them highly valued time which they devoted to art, music, dance and myth, and to land management, conservation, and animal husbandry. The end of "Dreamtime" came 10-20,000 years ago when searing droughts ravaged the verdant jungles. Gone were the clouds which had washed the land with their cooling rains. Although expelled from their Eden, the Aborigines kept the ancient laws given by their ancestors and adapted to the changing environment. When the animals starved in bad seasons, so did the Aborigines. Still, they continued to sing the song cycles and faithfully kept the rituals with their promise of renewed life. In secret and sacred places of power, the initiated ones painted pictures on the sandstone and pondered life after death in Willunda, the aboriginal heaven located among the stars. Today, the racial climate has vastly improved in Australia. Old wounds from the colonial and gold rush days have healed, yet deep scars remain. Unfortunately, mistrust and misunderstanding still linger on. Interest and appreciation for the Aboriginal culture is increasing all over the world, the main reason being that there are key elements in their mythologies that are present in those of all cultures, but the Aborigines have not lost their secrets. Like the North American red Indians - they still hold their rituals and ceremonies at the sacred places of power, and their sacred knowledge is held close to heart, being passed on from one generation to the next - never leaving the tribal circles of elders. The ancient magic the initiated knew in the bush has not been lost, as they are aware that when they dream, they go into the presence of their ancestors and the greater beings. Their idea of a return of the "Dreamtime" is a universal concept, a subconscious longing for the return to that magic time which is today firmly planted in the mind and heart of modern man. The early parts of their mythology do indeed talk of a primordial being coming from the skies and bringing many children with him. The primordial being is known to Aborigines today as erina itja arbamankala, translated as 'him none made', who came before the Dreamtime (alchera). The children he brought with him populated the world of that period, creating mankind along with all other life. They then went underground to await the return of the prime father, the primordial being. Although there are many variations of this story between differing tribes, the primordial being from the stars is a running constant. Imagine a race of superior beings, travelling through space in aeons long past, and coming upon our solar system. After charting the gas giants and the worlds within the solar system, they find that the Earth with its rich atmosphere and primitive developing lifeforms is the most likely candidate for a seeding program. A team of scientists is despatched to the Earth to work on the seeding project, while more craft arrive to clean up the solar system and wipe out potential threats to the Earth, such as rogue meteors, comets and planetoids. After a great deal of time, the craft start to leave, and the scientists with their seeding project begin to leave as well so the genetic program can unfold by itself. After many millennia have passed the Earth is again visited and the travellers find that the program has taken a few odd turns - the result being that huge un-intelligent reptiles have taken sway of the food chain. These reptiles are instantly wiped out in order for the program to be corrected and to make way for the flower of the seeding program to evolve, culminating in the human being. Permanent bases are created on other worlds, a Mars base acting as the solar system headquarters is built in the Cydonia area. There they also build a huge sphinx like structure facing the heavens showing the face of the supreme being of the visitors. Personnel are left to man the bases and monitor the progress of the evolving seeding program while the bulk of the mission team return home. Again a great length of time passes and interest eventually increases in the evolving lifeforms on Earth. Another scientific contingent arrive and a further bug has been found within the program. A crisis situation arises and permission is sought to make a direct genetic alteration to the subject seeds of the program as their genetic evolution has halted at a primitive stage. Permission is given and many of the pregnant lifeforms of the seed are taken aboard craft and undergo embryonic genetic alterations. A totally new variety of the seed emerge upon the face of the Earth as a result and gain dominion. That jump in evolution is what we now know to be the missing link. The crisis situation over, all scientific personnel leave the solar system and leave the bases derelict but self-running. A short time later a construction mission arrives to begin a massive developmental project upon the small tenth planet of our solar system which has such a vast orbit that it swings through the orbits of the inner planets of the solar system every 10,000 years. The barren surface of the planet hides the hollow interior which is made into a huge permanent colony of visitors. Regular visits from scientists among the colonists to Earth provide useful development programs to develop tribes and groups around the planet. Once the humans undergo intelligence evolution, certain groups get larger and start to build primitive buildings. It is then that the visitors really start to make contact with these early civilizations and teach them about their origins, the stars and how to utilize the land and the elements. A Dreamtime is born. Most of the above is theory only, although I have used certain pieces of information that were allegedly given to US military personnel by the Holloman landing greys. Could this be the way that it was in times long gone. Are we all cosmic children and still being observed by our parents? It could be in these latter times, when we look at the enigmatic standing figures of Easter island, the pyramids of ancient Egypt and the even more ancient sphinx that we are looking into a past unexpectedly more mysterious than we could possibly imagine. We really need to examine as a major issue knowledge that may have been lost in the mists of time by looking at ancient sites with a more profound and alternative viewpoint as they hold memories that could unlock the secrets of the genesis of mankind.

ABDUCTION INFECTION
Darryl Smith examines an issue not often considered.....

The abduction scenario and its various agendas are now generally termed to be real events by most of the UFOlogical community. If this is so then we should ask some very serious questions. One is why is there a genetic agenda to the abductions and also if there is a possibility of, and if there is to what extent, damage is being done to the abductees, or as some people call them "experiencers". If you believe in the reality of the abductions then you cannot deny the genetic agenda of these entities. This appears to be ever increasing towards the definite reality of a human/alien hybrid. The participants of this genetic program do not seem to have a choice, and even though the aliens have buried most of the memories of the interstellar rape deep within the subconscious, it is found that they can still fester within the human subconscious causing a wide range of symptoms such as depression and traumatic shock without the abductee even being aware.

We must also examine the question of whether this genetic harvesting damages the host in physical ways. For example are any of the major UFO organizations checking and cross referencing the medical histories of abducted women, for any unusual patterns of medical problems, especially hormone and reproductive problems as this seems to be the aliens main interest area. One of the earliest cases of abduction - the Betty and Barney Hill case involved medical problems, when Barney contracted genital warts after what appeared to be a suction cup was placed on his genitals. This shows that another area that we need to look at is the question of possible medical infection through medical examinations by the alien beings. So far I have seen or read no evidence to support the theory that the aliens are using any cleaning procedures before, during or after the medical procedures. If the instruments used are not sterile then the risk of infection is very real and very dangerous. Many of the reported instruments break the skin and probes are sent internally into the body, causing the wound to bleed and scar.

What about the possibility that the abductee before you in the queue may have had an infection, illness or disease. It is a coincidence that in the years when abductions by alien beings reach fever proportions that we are under threat from a host of new and deadly diseases of which many are harsh and even terminal, such as AIDS. I am not saying that aliens are swooping down and infecting us all with the AIDS virus, but the basic reality is that they could unwittingly be helping in the spread of these diseases throughout the human population.

The reported autopsies on the alien beings state that their digestive systems and other organs are atrophied, damaged or diseased. This could be suggestive of some kind of genetic disorder, probable disease or widespread illness. If you were ever abducted would you be willing to go last in the queue, just imagine trying to explain to your partner that it was aliens who infected you with pubic lice or WORSE! Would you be willing to take the risk that researchers maybe up until now have ignored whilst arguing over the reality of the existence of alien beings?

JOHN MACK, M.D.

John Robinson reports on the interview with world leading abduction researcher DR. JOHN MACK and Truth Seeker Richard Cutting.....

Dr. John Mack, M.D. is fast becoming world famous inside and outside of UFO research communities for his incredible investigations into the abduction phenomena and has appeared on prime time television interviews broadcast by stations all over the world. He is a Harvard graduated psychiatrist, ranking highly at the Harvard Cambridge Hospital and a founding director of the Center for Psychological Studies in the Nuclear Age - now named Center for Psychology and Social Change. Before Mack released his shattering book Abduction - human encounters with aliens, he wrote the classic Nightmares and Human Conflict, and won a Pulitzer prize for his work A Prince of Our Disorder. His career radically changed when he admitted while serving on EST's board of Directors that he valued highly eastern spirituality and uses transpersonal approaches in his clinical work, a term used in Freudian psychoanalysis. He has been closely followed by press and colleagues alike in his new-found career of abduction research, and has had to put up with false witnesses such as Donna Bassett who claimed to have got under the shell of Dr. Mack with false claims of abduction. In 1993, with money donated by C.B. Scott Jones' Human Potential Foundation, Mack founded the Program for Extraordinary Experience Research (PEER) with the objective of investigating the alien abduction phenomena. Dr. Mack is scheduled to speak at the second South Wales Supernatural, UFO & Crop Circle Conference in August of 1995 - details of which are published on page 10 of this issue.

John Robinson

Interview with John Mack, July 19th 1994 by Richard Cutting.

How many purported abductees have you worked with up until now?

I've seen 90 to 100 people who fulfill the criteria that I use to put somebody in the category of authentic abductee or experiencer which are: Does the person, with or without the use of an altered state, hypnosis, modified hypnosis or relaxation exercise; experience contact with humanoid beings? And do these beings take them by some force into an enclosure and subject them to various procedures? And is this reported with emotion appropriate to what they are talking about? And is there no psychiatric condition, as far as I can see, to explain this?

Are all hypnotized?

Not all are hypnotically regressed. Nearly 60 of the people have done one to ten hypnosis or relaxation exercises. When I establish with somebody, in my own mind at least, that they're an abductee, there's a choice to be made. Do they want to go further in exploring the phenomenon? It has to do with my time and their availability and interest in going further. It's remarkable to me how many people do want to go further. They feel that a large part of their lives has been cut off from their awareness and they can't access it. Even though they know that the recovery of these experiences is going to be disturbing to them, the majority do want to go further.

What psychiatric/psychological tests have they been subject to?

Four of the people that I've seen have had a battery of tests by a Ph.D. psychologist. The full battery of psychological tests is very expensive and is not routinely done when you do a psychiatric work-up. But I had four people tested, three of whom came out highly functional, healthy and normal range. One young man was quite troubled. His tests revealed psychological disturbances, although those disturbances did not explain his abduction experiences.

You have suggested that therapy for experiencers is, from your clinical standpoint, a co-creative process. Could you expand on this idea?

People who do work in this field, who do work with abductees, have differing ways of looking at the phenomenon. And they have very strong opinions about that. My sense is that there are many selective processes going on here. Who people turn to - will the person they meet with be receptive to their experiences? In order to gain the trust of abductees, you need to convey a sense of openness and be willing to listen to what they say and make a connection with them. This is not a matter of being like an instrument coldly or distantly, as subject examining a person as the object. You enter into a deep connection with that person, and what that person brings forth is, in part, a product of what the facilitator can hear, or can tolerate to hear. The person will bring forth what they feel the psychological atmosphere in the interview will tolerate - which isn't to say that they say what the interviewer wants to hear. It's not that at all. It's misinterpreted that way. You don't lead the person. I don't get a sense they are trying to please me by what they are coming out with. On the contrary, people are very troubled to have had these experiences. It's troubling to have these experiences recalled, and it's also troubling to have the fact that they've had the experiences affirmed. In other words, they would prefer it not to be true, and often say they wish there was a pill to make it go away. So, what I mean by co-creative is that there has to be an openness and receptivity to the material, whatever it may be. It's striking that some investigators will get mainly the material about examinations and the hybrid project. I get that, but I also get a great deal about the destruction of the earth's ecology which is conveyed by the beings. And I get that in case after case. That may have to do not so much with my values necessarily, which I've been criticized for - everybody has ecological values - but it's that I, for some reason, have an openness to hear material which is more earth-related or more transcendent or ecological, spiritual, I don't know what to call it. There may be something in my consciousness which creates the possibility that those dimensions of the experience can be brought forth, whereas other investigators might not hear that material. In fact, they don't hear that material. I think that the receptivity of the investigator has something to do with the material that's brought forth. But I want to stress that that doesn't mean that it's brought forth to please the interviewer. It means it can be heard. What I mean by co-creative is that there is this connecting of two peoples' consciousnesses and that will affect what material the person brings forth.

It seems one of your messages to your colleagues and the general public concerns the need for a completely different paradigm in dealing with the alien abduction phenomenon. Can you please elaborate?

The most definitive distinction between the old and the new paradigm has to do with the relationship between our reality and what might be called the spirit world, the unseen world, the world behind the veil, parallel universe - there are all kinds of terms. In this culture, the realm has been the province of folklorists or students of comparative religion, anthropologists - it's been kept quite separate from science. What appears to be happening with the abduction phenomenon is that these beings, entities, or whatever they are; seem to not respect that barrier. These entities seem to belong in the parallel universe, but they cross over and manifest in the physical world. They are not of one or the other. The Western-Newtonian-Cartesian paradigm has no way to deal with that. And this gets into the methodologies. When you are dealing with the physical world per se, as though abductions were purely a phenomenon in the physical world, then you would look primarily for evidence in the sensory empirical mode. Physical evidence that you could put your hands on, touch, smell, feel, bite etc. But with a phenomenon that crosses over between the unseen world, if that is what it is, then it may be that the ways we know, study and learn may have to change if the reality we're studying is different. So, the paradigm change includes both the ontological and the epistemological shift. As far as I can tell, this is such a phenomenon. It does seem to come from this other realm but it crosses over and manifests in the physical world and there are physical findings. So the methodology then is not either-or. It can be both. My speciality is not as a physical scientist, but as a psychiatrist-psychologist. That's what I do. So I tended to play my strong suit, which is the assessment of mental states. In the hundreds, getting to thousands of hours that I've now spent with abductees, the phenomenon doesn't act like anything other than actual experience. Which means that it doesn't act like a form of mental illness. It would be much more individualized. These accounts are so consistent, down to the smallest details. It doesn't act like dream or fantasy, which are very individual, nor mass psychology or hysteria or psychosis because there's no mass phenomenon here, no contagion, no group phenomenon. Abductees tend to be quite separated from each other unless they are brought together in a support group or by becoming friends. So that leaves only real experience. The next question then is, is it any other kind of real experience? Like sexual trauma, or other kinds of trauma. But it doesn't act like anything else. First of all, the experiences: the traumas are only one dimension of them. There are visions on the ships of ecological destruction, there are journeys on the ships, around them, children and adults are shown different quarters of the ships sometimes. There are conversations that go on telepathically between the abductees and the alien beings that are quite complex and sometimes involve zen-like cryptic messages; all of which are part of the whole phenomenon. So the intrusive procedures - being paralyzed and taken against one's will, and the reproductive/sexual element - are the traumatic ones. But they are only some of the many elements that occur as part of the whole phenomenon on the ships. On the matter of sexual abuse, one thing that argues against this theory is that the majority of the experiencers have not been sexually abused. You can always say "Maybe you didn't go far enough..." and maybe they were sexual abuse victims anyway. But it was also clear in the cases where there has been sexual abuse - when they've had both experiences - the abductees are quite able to distinguish the dimensions of trauma that come from sexual abuse versus those which are alien-related. The most convincing argument is that some of these people are very solid, healthy, sometimes prominent, well-put-together people, who upon examination do not give evidence of having any other kind of trauma. One is left with the only logical conclusion, as a psychiatrist - that it is what it is. That it isn't something else. That there appears to be an intrusion of some sort of intelligence into our world. This gets back to the question of evidence. I'm on most solid ground when I stay with the psychological evidence. This acts like a real experience that's not something else. Since this is a phenomenon which perhaps comes from another dimension, and enters into our physical world, and people are observed to be missing and physical things happen to them, it is important to gather physical evidence. I think the physical evidence is important. My job however, is to assess mental states. That's what I do.

Much criticism has been levelled at your research methodologies which some have claimed fail to adhere to scientific standards. You in fact have stressed the need for a consistent, sound set of principles to apply to the phenomenon. What would those principles be, in a nutshell?

This phenomenon is so complex. There are so many potential disciplines. What I've stressed is what I know best - how to best evaluate these cases as a psychiatrist. The appropriate methodology for someone like me would be to use my psychological acuity and capacities to assess mental states and map out the terrain of this phenomenon by the case study method. Interviewing people and establishing that these are experiences that can't be explained by other psychiatric or psychosocial means. This has been the methodology. Through PEER (Program for Extraordinary Experience), we are now embarking on a research project which will hypothesize that careful psychological testing and questionnaires and eventually interviews will not come up with some pathology or dynamic explanation that could account for this phenomenon. I think that kind of formal research should be done, for sure.

In this early stage, I believe that the methodology which I've used, which is a time honored one when your trying to establish a new field in psychology and psychiatry, is to use narrative and case study method. To explore individual cases in some depth, and then see how they compare, how the phenomena repeat themselves and how that consistency is established. As a psychiatrist who knows the history of my field, I don't have any problems defending that methodology.

So now if the criticism is that I should have spent more time on the physical evidence, what I would say to that is that's a whole field in itself. That should be done by physicians, who have been woefully neglectful, by the way, in taking it on. There are a few, like Richard Neal, John Miller and John Altschuler who have studied this and described it, appropriately, what they know best according to their medical specialities.

Altschuler's a pathologist, and he has studied the pathology of people's lesions. Miller's an internist who knows surgery too, who has looked at the medical reports and the instruments that abductees report, and has shown that they are not the kinds of medical surgical instruments we use here on Earth. I don't know of a dermatologist who has looked at these scoop marks, cuts, whatever. But I'd point out that for me to take that on - taking pictures of little scoop marks and cuts and trying to demonstrate that there are these physical findings - I would be a ready target within the medical profession. Because a dermatologist, say, who doesn't know this field and doesn't know that this evidence should be used, in my view, corroboratively, to the psychological material I've been talking about; would simply say, "What is this? Someone stuck their fingernail in there and hurt themselves in the night."

In my book I do summarise the physical findings but I don't argue for them, I don't set myself up as being able to defend it as a physician on medical - surgical grounds. I make reference to it. People are so hasty, they don't stop to think. They say I am too relaxed about the physical evidence. They don't consider that I have special problems as a physician in arguing for physical evidence that does not stand up by itself but is corroborative. Now, it's fine for Bud Hopkins, and people who are not psychiatrists or any other kinds of physicians to be generalists and talk about the phenomena; hybrids, skin lesions, missing pregnancies and one thing or another. I have tremendous respect for their work, but I cannot go around talking about these things with authority because one cannot establish that those medical surgical reports are not caused by something else, or that the pregnancies are truly proved to be missing or caused by aliens. If I start, as a physician among physicians, talking about the cuts and scoop marks and getting serious about them, and start taking pictures of them and stuff, I would be very vulnerable.

When I speak about my psychological findings, among psychiatrists and psychologists, they're troubled because they know I know my stuff. They may have some theory in mind, say sexual abuse, before they go into the meetings - but when they here the material, and particularly when they see the abductees, they have no alternative explanations. I think the methodology I have used is appropriate for a psychiatrist investigating a new phenomenon or syndrome. It should be followed up by some more standardized tests. Although you wouldn't know what kind of standardized tests if you didn't know what the basic findings of the field were.

HOW HAS YOUR INVOLVEMENT WITH ALTERNATIVE THERAPIES AND CONSCIOUSNESS STUDIES INFLUENCED YOUR WORK WITH EXPERIENCERS? FOR INSTANCE, HOW ARE YOU USING YOUR EST TRAINING AND KNOWLEDGE OF HOLOTROPIC BREATHING?

These modalities represent part of an effort to expand human self knowledge and consciousness. What EST and Werner-Erhard set out to do is to question the way we see things. To question the basic assumptions, psychological, cultural, etc. to open ourselves to the possibilities that there are other realities. I can't say how I specifically apply these things. Grof breathwork is kind of like an energised meditation. The principal thing I have learned from that is to be open to the transpersonal realm - that capacity of our consciousness to identify beyond ourselves all kinds of native spirits or mythic beings. It's a powerful identification with entities. It's that consciousness can travel beyond the brain and communicate with beings that are beyond everyday reality. It doesn't mean that those entities are given physical reality in the physical world as we know it, but there is a power in that identification that is not the same as imagining. Being trained in this method of transpersonal psychology creates for one's own psyche a greater consciousness beyond that which is material, which can be touched to experience one's consciousness is a projection of the brain.

I was an intense sceptic when I first heard about people being abducted. I don't think I would have given it the time of day if I hadn't already had some sort of opening to transpersonal psychology. This whole phenomena of UFO's and abduction is looked at in transpersonal psychology. It goes a step further though, because it says that there is this crossover possibility. That there is this entity, that ought to only be mythic, that can come back the other way, and manifest physically. So that is one of the ways that the Grof consciousness expansion work has affected me. It made it possible for me to consider the phenomenon. The second way was that when I work with people, I do not do classic hypnosis. I use a mild transinduction, and I use the breath to help people intergrate, re-center themselves, and when they get anxious, go back inside in order to slow down and pull themselves back together before they go on to re-live other experiences. The breathing is pretty normal breathing, deep, slow breathing, but I have them concentrate on their breath. This is very centering, and part of the process of taking attention away from, say, attending to the interviewer, for example.

IT HAS BEEN STATED THAT YOU HAVE BEEN IN A NUMBER OF POSITIONS WHERE YOU HAVE BEEN ASSOCIATED WITH MIND CONTROL EXPERIMENTATION FINANCED BY THE LAW ENFORCEMENT ASSISTANCE ADMINISTRATION UNDER THE NIXON ADMINISTRATION, WHICH PURPORTEDLY FUNNELED SOME SIX BILLION DOLLARS SINCE ITS INCEPTION INTO BEHAVIOUR MODIFICATION RESEARCH. IT HAS BEEN ALLEGED THAT YOU HAVE CONTINUED TO BE INVOLVED IN SUCH PROJECTS SPONSORED BY THE GOVERNMENT. IS THIS TRUE?

I don't know where that came from. There is absolutely nothing to that at all. I have had nothing to do with any government agency or law enforcement agency. They haven't even shown interest. It is completely untrue.

SINCE THE RECENT PUBLICITY CONCERNING YOU AND YOUR BOOK, HAVE YOU STARTED TO OBSERVE ANY NEW TRENDS OR CONDITIONS IN THE ABDUCTION SCENARIO WHICH YOU FEEL NEED FURTHER EXPLORATION?

There are two. One is that the experiencers seem to be more focused than before on the conditions under which they can summon the beings to them, set the conditions under which the abduction phenomenon occurs. To not be helpless victims, but to demand or invite a more reciprocal relationship with the beings. I think there is also more interest in the field with transcendent and transpersonal elements. Past life phenomena, the dual-identity phenomenon where the abductee feels, in the altered state, that they also have an alien identity. Also powerful spiritual openings when people feel they are connected through the beings to some source or divinity. It's hard to separate out my own interests from trends in the field, however.

I think it's important to look at ourselves in relationship to this phenomenon more intensely. A lot of discussion around what it means, and spirituality, has to do with whether the aliens treat us roughly, or seemingly inconsiderately, this argues against the transcendent or spiritual nature of the phenomenon. But that's, I think, a misunderstanding of what is meant by spiritual. A Zen teacher strikes a student to get his attention. From the student's point of view it hurts. But it doesn't mean it isn't part of his enlightenment. And I'm not saying the purpose of the aliens is to enlighten us. I'm not saying that at all. But the phenomenon, by opening us up to the existence of beings, consciousness, intelligences beyond ourselves or beyond the earth may, by its very nature, help overcome some of the collective egocentrism of our species. Again, that doesn't mean that's the purpose of this. The whole idea that this can be looked at from the standpoint of human motivation and humanism versus alien motivation and purpose may be wrong, too, as we don't know what the intelligence is that we operate by. We don't know what intelligence is at work in the cosmos as a whole that is behind them.

This is an interest of mine. From the point of view of history or philosophy or science this is very important. We've kept spirituality and science so far apart. This work almost demands that we look at how they are interrelated.

RECENT COURT CASES AND ISSUES OF "FALSE MEMORY SYNDROME" HAVE BROUGHT INTO QUESTION THE VALIDITY OF HYPNOSIS AS A TOOL FOR RETRIEVING ACCURATE

"REALLY REAL" MEMORIES. WHAT IS YOUR PERSPECTIVE ON THIS?

I am continually struck by how near the surface these experiences are. There's a lot of talk in the hypnotist literature about hypnotizability. The term hardly applies in abduction work. In my experience the abduction experiences are so near the surface, so pressing to be communicated, that sometimes the person just lies back and the experiences begin to be re-lived right away. There is intensity of feeling and body movement and stress. Sometimes they cry out from different aspects of the experience. It's extremely powerful from an affective and energetic point of view. I want to stress this because the idea that you somehow elicit this through hypnosis is really false. It hardly requires it. I've had people sitting here with no hypnosis - they just start to talk about their experiences, and their body begins to tremble and the memories flood back. It doesn't necessarily require trance induction. Eddie Bullard and others have shown that something like 30 percent of the experiences are recalled with no relaxation exercises at all. Minimal relaxation exercises will bring back a flood of feelings and a re-living of the experiences.

There are two other issues. One has to do with language categories. The whole question of did these abduction really happen in our material reality has to be questioned. For example, when an abductee is brought to see a hybrid baby in a UFO. Is that witnessing occurring in our physical reality as we know it? Maybe not. Maybe they've been brought into another dimension. Many abductees feel that their experiences are occurring in some other space-time dimension. What the abductees are describing is powerful from an experiential point of view, and non-delusional. But the question is whether they are accurately reporting exactly what happened or not. Or is this some kind of experiential re-living in a domain that we don't understand, one which may not be literally happening in our physical world. The whole question of literal accuracy of memory may not even apply to these experiences because that term linguistically relates to the literal physical world. And if it's not in that world to begin with altogether, then the whole question of literal accuracy may not be the right language.

Number two, the inaccuracies attributed to hypnosis in court cases have to do with situations that where what is being recalled was not of vital or central importance to the person. In other words, if they were a peripheral witness in an accident case, and they're asked to recall under hypnosis, they may not recall accurately. They may be asked to come up with something, but that something is not of vital importance to their lives. There is not evidence, according to the literature that I've been reading, where when there is a matter of core importance to the person's very existence that the recall is inaccurate.

Again, we can't speak of what's literally happened in this phenomenon. But as far as hypnosis goes, generally speaking, its inaccuracy occurs either in court cases as I've described, or in cases where they try to experimentally plant memories as in Elizabeth Loftus' of children who were told they were lost or separated from their mothers. Something is suggested to them, and the authority of the suggestor may override the actual memory of what happened. I don't know of any evidence where somebody is re-living something that is of central, vital power for them, and hypnosis helps to do that - that they recall inaccurately in hypnosis. Dan Brown reviewed all that literature, and I reviewed it with him. There are not studies that show evidence that hypnosis is inaccurate in situations which are of central or core importance to the person's mind.

DO YOU HAVE ANY COMMENTS, QUESTIONS, COUNTER-ASSERTIONS REGARDING THE ALLEGATIONS OF DONNA BASSETT IN THE RECENT TIME MAGAZINE ARTICLE?

I am constrained by patient confidentiality. I'm not free to speak about what her motives were or the details of the case when she came to me. I saw Donna Bassett in good faith several times. If in fact she did fool me, which could happen - it's not impossible - then she was lying to me consistently. That would follow certainly from her claim that she hoaxed me. In fact, she has established herself as an effective and thorough on-going liar, then how can she be considered an authority on matters of integrity regarding my work, methodology, patient-client and physician relationship?

The assumption is that she fooled me into using her material as part of my database. The fact is I didn't use one word she had to say in my book. Does that mean I didn't trust her, or that I didn't think she was telling the truth? I guess that in some intuitive way I kept a certain distance. But I don't think that's because she's necessarily not an abductee. This is hard to know - It gets close to getting into what I know about her from my clinical work with her, which I'm unwilling to do. I can only say how someone like this might work hypothetically. She moved to North Carolina sometime, oh a year or so ago, and I lost connection with her. She continued to call, and she also, when she began to turn against me, began to try and enlist other members of the support group, experiencers, in that effort. She got them quite stirred up. But eventually they didn't want any part of it. After a while they wouldn't return her phone calls and she became quite isolated. It's possible, and I'm not saying this is what happened, that a person becoming so alienated from their supporters could become very troubled and turn on someone who is trying to help them. That happens a lot. The other experiencers who knew her well don't believe her story, that she's hoaxing me. They believe she's an abductee who became disturbed and couldn't deal with her experiences. I'm not saying that I believe that, but others do. So, it isn't clear. I tend to credit that as a possibility, given that I know what my sessions with her were like. I think that's consistent with the sessions.

What I found troubling with the time magazine article was that the writer - who I guess had a connection with Donna's husband, Ed Bassett, a journalist - took this story on face value and used it to discredit me. The things Donna Bassett says about me and my work are not accurate. They are not true. He did not go to the 50 or 60 other abductees who would have supported my work, who found it helpful, useful, positive - he went with the one person, an admitted liar, or liar claimant, and made that the story.

What's interesting here is why Time magazine would go to such lengths to put aside any other positive material to create a story to slander me. What would be the motivation of that writer and that organization to discredit the work on the basis of somebody whose chief claim is that they lied to me consistently? The writer never indicated that he would build the story on a person who was not an abductee, by her own claim, and who would lie her way into our confidence. Time, in a little squib, a few weeks later said they'd received a lot of letters supporting John Mack's work and admitted something must be going on here that they hadn't acknowledged in their article. By that time the damage was done. END

Dr. Mack has revolutionized abduction interest with his calm, understanding and professional attitude towards the abductees. The fact alone that his credentials speak for themselves is credit enough to a man whose career has been put on the line by even glimpsing in to this fascinating subject. But Dr. Mack has not only become convinced of the validity of the abduction scenario, he has spoken candidly on the subject at scientific and psychiatric conventions in front of his peers without any qualms in doing so. Most ufologists agree that in Budd Hopkins' movie "Intruders", the investigating psychologist is modelled on Mack. Once a skeptic - not always a skeptic. [ED]

SKYWATCH REPORT

BY MATTHEW WILLIAMS

Some people are unaware of the fact that Wiltshire is a good place to go and see UFO's. I count myself as being somebody who does not go foaming at the mouth at simply lights in the sky and hope my following recollections do appear to be those of a sane, patient and realistic person. I recall now the events which lead me to say that perhaps Wiltshire is the place to be this summer if you want a good chance of seeing UFO's.

It was a Saturday night, on August the 20th, when I saw my first unusual light in the vicinity of Alton Barnes. Up to this point I had been in Wiltshire for approx. 3 months and had not seen anything unusual except for crop circles. We were on the highest point of Knapp Hill, parked in my car which was facing north. When I say we, I mean that also present was my friend, Andrew Russell of Cwmbran - South Wales. We were engaged in conversation about UFO related matters and had the engine running in order to keep us warm - warmth was the primary reason that we were sitting in the car! I was relaxed in my seat but still had a view out through the rear view mirror in the direction south. The reason for us facing northwards was to look at the stars which were visible out in that direction. There did appear to be a lot of military helicopter activity in the sky, and we had watched the red lights crossing back and forth on the horizon in all directions for about an hour. No helicopters came near our location though.

At approx. 11.30p.m., a light suddenly appeared in the mirror which started to grow in brightness and size. At first I merely glanced into the mirror not taking much notice, expecting the light to be a car on the horizon, but still it grew brighter and larger until I did take enough notice to look over my shoulder to see what was taking place. I realised that the light was not near the horizon - instead it was well above the horizon and still growing larger. I gestured to Andrew and he quickly turned to see the light.

Without saying much we both proceeded to exit the vehicle whilst keeping our necks craned so as not to lose sight of the object. When we were outside we could see the light had now expanded to the approximate size of a football which is held at arms length. We then made another observation about the object - it had steady streaks of light projecting out of it, much as you see when squinting your eyes at street lights. This also resembles the Bethlehem Christmas Star. The overall object was coloured light orange/white and was not flickering with horizon haze or the heat effect and was hovering perfectly still.

After about ten to fifteen seconds I decided it would be a good idea to reach inside the car and get my binoculars out to get a closer look. Still keeping my eyes trained on the light I reached inside the car and brought them up to my eyes. At this point nothing special could be gained from a closer look at the object, it just seemed to be a solid source of light, slightly faded at the edges and more faded the further out you went, however still possessing a seemingly solid centre area. The streaks were still present through the binoculars and did not appear to be light flare on the lens. We decided that the mass was far too large for it to have been a conventional flare. Indeed looking around the object I could see not flare smoke or a parachute, nor did the object appear to decrease it's height.

Handing the binoculars over to Andrew, he agreed that there was no way it could be a flare. I am sure that at this point there was much use of profanities spoken back and forth between Andrew and myself, in acknowledgement and admiration of the object - of course! Andrew stated that he was just as much in awe of the object as I was, due to it's being so very large.

We were able to determine that the object/light was somewhere directly south of our position which put it somewhere over Salisbury Plain. Again no bomb or flare goes off like this so if it was some sort of military test then I would be interested how this item stays so still whilst burning so bright with such an oversized area. I suspect that this was not military though but more of this in a minute.

We were about 2 minutes into the sighting and still didn't have a better grasp of what we were looking at... Andrew handed me back the binoculars and as I scanned the object once more, we both agreed that it had now started to diminish, quite slowly though, and very linear in it's reduction of both size and light. I was taking great care to look around the object to see if it's source could be determined and could find none. As it got to about half it's original size it became apparent that there was a crescent line/platform or dark patch present slightly underneath the object. I only viewed about 1 second of this before the whole light instantly shut off.

One expects all heated element light sources to dim progressively and even flares dim away and do not turn off directly. If this was a terrestrial form of light then the only explanation for it's quick disappearance would for it to have been a shutter drawn over the light or for it's light element to be arc light which extinguishes immediately upon power being stopped to it's poles. Arc light would seem a bad explanation as it's natural colour is blue/white. What we saw was a light orange colour and this would have needed to have been sodium or metal halide arc lights, both of which I have not heard of being employed inside helicopter spotlights.

Now with the object returned from whence it came, Andy and I discussed at length the possibilities of what the object could and could not have been. Whilst we talked we noticed that about four helicopters were on the horizon moving towards the relative position that the object had been positioned at. The helicopters finally met up at the point and after a few minutes dispersed, without deploying visual or Infra Red flares nor use of spot lights.

The fact that the helicopters drew in on the location is of interest due to some 1994 statements by a few individuals to the effect that helicopters were seen hanging around crop circles soon after being formed. Whilst they moved around over the circles people were present inside the fields. These helicopters were outside military training grounds and hovering over crop circles within 20-30 FT of civilians. This is not only dangerous but breaks both military and civilian air law... The down draft is dangerous and the whole experience of having a helicopter hover above you can be quite frightening, not to mention very ignorant of the pilot.

You can take it as fact that helicopters have also been spotted filming and photographing people in circles and even now 'buzzing' cars, some of this was caught on film by Colin Andrews, and displayed at the Cardiff UFO conference of 1994.

We have intelligence that these military toys have even chased unusual objects that have appeared in crop fields, and as in our own example, have also been known to home in on UFO activity. We are told that a point to look for when you see a military helicopter lurking around outside the military zones, is what type of radio aerials are in use - it has been noticed that large aerials are often seen, so the speculation is that somehow the military are able to track unusual phenomena via radio signals given out...

Second sight....

Later on the same evening, whilst still located at Knapp Hill, now facing south we spied a second unusual object. We had just received a call from Paul Damon on my mobile phone. He could not be present at this weekends watch, but I explained the events and he was very interested in the sighting but he then suggested that I should get the video camera out. Thanks be to Paul, who was obviously not quite as excited as us, and was thinking with a more rational aspect. After Paul called off, I assembled the camera equipment.

The camera I use is modular and has a true 16 times zoom with wide aperture so can work in low light. (I made up the lens from an old broadcast camera which I had lying around and didn't use.)

At approximately 12.00am we saw a red light above the horizon in the vicinity of Devises. It was hovering. Again we both watched the light with the binoculars and when it was my turn to look through the binoculars I saw subject jump up a distance which I can approximate to being a couple of hundred feet. The object then stopped dead and hovered again - a hyper speed manoeuvre. This was confirmed with Andy just before the light went out - it simply switched off.

I started to switch on my video camera incase any other objects presented themselves in the area. The camera powered up, the video switched on and I pressed the start button. At almost the same time, a new set of lights appeared in the distance. I trained the camera on them, zoomed in and focused the lens. Just as the recording light came on, another object appeared, and was in my camera viewfinder. Also it was similar in elevation to the earlier red light objects we sighted.

This time the light did seem to pulsate a little and then all of a sudden dropped something bright out from beneath it, which shot down to near ground level. The object changed direction to a sideways motion just before ground level. The main object was at the same time seen to move up slightly when as it emitted the object. All of this was recorded on video, although only five to six seconds! Some researchers and interested parties who visited The Barge on the Sunday after this sighting, saw the footage.

I have drawn a similarity between the objects I saw and those which were observed at Gulf Breeze - Florida. Whatever the Gulf Breeze lights were, they had a very powerful sources, so much so that they appeared white on video camera recordings even when they were slightly red in colour. These then proceeded to drop either one, or multiples of lights out which seemed to shoot down to ground height at a rate which suggested propulsion being used and not normal & simple earths gravity pulling them downward. Ed Walters has described to us his encounters with craft which seemed occupied with unloading bright substances to the ground.

Just out of interest, Tom & Kerry Blower were contacted by the SIGHTINGS show for some footage they had shot and mentioned that I had got some interesting footage as well, again mentioning the Gulf Breeze similarity. They collected a copy and it may turn up in a future episode showing similar sightings.

Greased Lightning

On a unrecalled night soon after the above events I was present again on Knapp Hill with Anne De Boisgelin and partner Roy Wilkinson. I am good friends with both Anne and Roy who are both experienced researchers now working for Quest International. Also present was a Bristol based researcher called Ian (second name escapes me now... Sorry Ian!) Roy had his video camera set up incase anything happened and guess what - something did.

It was a few hours after midnight and a bitter chill was in the air. Clouds hung low above us with the occasional gap showing fleeting glimpses of the heavens. The moon was somewhere up there too, and apart from the odd car that passed by, we had a lonely silence which allowed us to hear far into the distance.

Then, infrequently at first, flashes started to come from inside the clouds but with no thunderclaps following. As the rate increased we watched the whole of the sky come alive in different directions with these hidden light sources. Sometimes there were multiple flashes at once. Not to be too sensationalist about this, it must be said that the effect was similar to that which could be seen in Close Encounters of the Third Kind.

We were not frightened by the happenings, instead we pondered on what they could be and we could not understand how so much lightning could be present without any sounds being emitted - even as we listened on, we did not hear even the slightest rumble or crackle! The strobing effect continued here and there, then leaving us for a period of ten minutes or so and then returned for another time before tapering off.

For a rational speculation, seeing as there was not a lot of cloud movement in the lower levels I could only speculate that perhaps at higher levels which were out of sight, there were indeed large cloud masses which were charged and bumping past each other and causing the flashes, these then being transmitted through the cloud base. This still doesn't explain the lack of noise though. Somebody may be able to convince me that this was the case and that there is a documented reason for this type of light effect. Secondly, we could not see that any type of military activity would cause this effect.

Then we moved on to other thoughts of large mother ships passing through the clouds in cloaked mode and other fantasy stuffs. We enjoyed this speculation but one thing is for certain the whole thing lasted for half an hour approx. and that is a lot of energy to be expended for any lightning show, all with no random spark down to ground or accidental rumble.

I have not spoken to anyone yet who also witnessed this event but the fact that our group of 4 people did view the phenomena makes good enough evidence to catalogue in my records. I am not prepared however to say that the lights we saw were proof of the supernatural or of alien craft, although I am not saying that they are not! I hold an open mind.

The thought enters my head quite often that perhaps the aliens are wishing us to believe in them, but without giving us absolute proof of their existence - they want us to have a faith in them. I do find this hard to accept but with so many people reporting enigmatic sightings, (which are hard to convince others about) this may be due to the aliens wanting individuals to learn to come to terms with alien life for their own reasons and not by their landing on the Whitehouse lawn. Could this be the reason why more and more people are sighting UFO's recently - a program by Aliens to make us more aware and to challenge our own beliefs?

When the time is right.....

By Paul Damon

Often, I hear the question asked "when is it going to happen?", simply meaning, when will we finally have proof that there is life out there among the stars - and when will they show themselves to us globally? Well, I am writing this article out of interest in that question. In my opinion, mankind as a race has reached a turning point in spiritual evolution. Materialism rules the day. What I've got that you haven't seems to be the pivot of most peoples' lives these days. After thousands of years of gaining control of our environment and nature, we are now indoctrinated by our leaders to believe that we have to compete with our fellow man just because he lives on another part of the planet, and the money that we have forcibly taken from us (taxes) is spent to better economize our countries to put them on the top of the list of wealthy countries. Well, isn't that just wonderful? To know and rest assured that our lives revolve entirely around growth of financial climates, and not the expansion of the human mind/soul to uncharted regions of divinity/consciousness. Sometimes, I look out of my window and I cringe at the way that the world is going, I look up at the birds in the trees and wonder how they see our towns and cities from up there when they are flying in the sky.

I get so fed up of switching on the television and the news comes on and there is a newsreader dispassionately telling us about all the wars, killings, suffering and disease the world over, and it's even more tragic to think that there are people all over the world who sit in front of the television like couch potatoes, watch such bad news being told, and then think of the problems in their own lives which seem to be more important to them. Of course this is instinctual I guess - take care of number one first, the rest comes later.

All our lives are inextricably wound up with all the suffering and killing going on around us. We exist in a perpetual state of racial tension, where killings and abuse of human beings are carried out simply because of the colour of the skin, or country of origin. We haven't learned after these thousands of years of evolution that we are all in the same boat, and out there, from the moon say, Earth is one big ball floating in space. We slaughter and hunt animals, many to the brink and beyond extinction without care or fear for the course of nature. If I was the Captain of a spacecraft visiting from another world I would be extremely fearful of making contact with such a violent species. So, does that mean we should give up hope of making contact? Obviously not, after all, UFO's are being spotted all over the planet, and going by recently published figures, these sightings are on a dramatic increase. Somebody is interested in us after all.

I do know, that like me, there are many individuals out there who seem to be awakening to a new concept of existence, starting to realise that we are not just mindless robots at the mercy of corrupt governments, powermongers, secret societies and military authorities. As I described in issue 1, a global movement is stirring and it is a movement of pure consciousness, a universal desire for a new understanding of the cosmos and our places within it. I rather believe that something is being triggered within the collective consciousness of human kind. It may be controlled by the watchers in the skies, or alternatively through a deep rooted programming within the human makeup, and the watchers are waiting for the program to run its course so they can unite with us.

There are those that are convinced that negative beings are harrasing mankind and conducting brutal experiments on subjects for means that are not quite understood. I do not wish to enter into a topical debate about such theories here, but I would just like to throw a few more logs onto the fire by saying that more and more abductees are coming forward to say that they have come to accept their experiences, and have at last achieved a stimulating rapport with the "offending abductors". It seems that without the fear factor, the experience becomes more lucid, and takes on the appearance of honoured contact with benevolent beings here to help save mankind from some terrible mistake, and to assist in bringing in a new age of unity, brotherhood, love and widened awareness. We all know that fear is responsible for many hallucinatory and unreal effects. I am glad that such development is occurring in the abduction research field.

Another question often asked of me is: "Why do you spend so much time looking into UFO's and crop circles when there are more down to earth and realistic things to be concerned with?" Well, as you may guess, this question is asked by individuals not privy to some of the fantastic footage and photographs that are about - for instance, mention Gulf Breeze and they'll blankly look at you and state that it sounds like a weather condition. Ask them if they know about Area 51 and they'll assert that it is a loading bay down a dock yard. Unfortunately, when I try to get them to look into the facts themselves, they seem to get the jitters and say it is all a waste of time to look into lights in the sky. It is at this moment that I usually advise them to be a bit more open minded and read some literature on the subject in their spare time. Via this research, I have come to understand that the things which people consider important within their lives are in fact shallow and materialistic obsessions deeply rooted in the basic and primitive desire to gain as much power, wealth and comfort as possible. What is totally ignored is that human kind developed from a caveman by getting out and exploring his world, initially respecting it so much so that all things were revered in a mystical way. It has been the insatiable curiosity of humankind that has led to all the discoveries that have been made.

It seems that a point of stagnation has been reached, whereby curiosity has been perverted to desire for power and wealth. Apathy where mysteries are concerned is held in check until it actually means getting out of the armchair to do some serious research where most are concerned. This has also been known in ufology and crop circle study groups as well as with individuals who edit magazines with titles along the lines of watching crops.

It is a hard game to undertake, that of investigating an outre subject with the objective of proving it to be real to a skeptical populace, especially when you have high powered authorities such as governmental departments set up to debunk all the evidence you can gather. But if you believe, as I do, that global contact with an extraterrestrial race will only come when humankind as a collective consciousness is ready to accept that it cannot tamper with nature, and can no longer kill in the name of politics, ownership and religion, and can no longer live just for the love of power, wealth and comfort, then you can see that the task is indeed great, and can seem impossible. But perseverance is the key to any accomplishment, and now more so than any other time, we need to accept as a whole our position in the pecking order of the natural universe. There are stories that tell of people being abducted, and never returning. There are stories of abductees who have returned from the experience to say that they have seen people working with the visitors - not military personnel, but gentle faced people who have informed them that they have nothing to fear, that a great time for mankind is at hand.

According to other reports I have researched, it would seem that certain special individuals are offered a place by the visitors to work with them in order for them to become ambassadors for the visitors in some not to distant future. This would help to explain a percentage maybe of the millions of people who disappear off the face of the Earth each year. This could, in all likelihood be the case, but I am only generalizing, there are so many aspects to be researched, and what a thrill that is, and these are things that Joe Public is so unaware of, when the word UFO is mentioned, they envision a flying saucer darting through the clouds, alas, it is not so simple. It is my sincere hope that more people become involved in the research, and that the time when humankind will be ready will be sooner than we'd dare hope.

How many of you out there feel the same way, if you want to communicate your feelings on the subject and modes of research, write them down and send them in to Truth Seekers Review, it is amazing what unity can be brought about by showing people that they are not alone in the way they feel. If you are only starting to get interested in the UFO and Crop Circle phenomena then send in any questions you have and we'll do our best to help you. If you want to talk to us without the subject matter going to print, no-problem! Specify in your communication. If you want to talk to us in confidence, we will respect that and try to help you as best we can. Only by talking can we hope to start gaining understanding.

Get ready for the SUMMER!!

Yes, it will be that time again soon, crop circle season and nightwatch mania will once again grip Wiltshire, and if you have not been there before doing research and investigations, then you will need to know where all the best places to go are, the best pubs, UFO watching points, and you should also know where the crop circles usually turn up from year to year.

Be sure to get Issue 3 due out end of March to find out all you need to get sorted for research this summer!!

NEWS UPDATE

On December 11th 1994, The People Newspaper reported that the Ministry of Defence were going to investigate abductions by extraterrestrials occurring within the British Isles. Apparently, a deal was struck between Mr. Eric Morris, director of the British UFO Studies Centre and the M.o.D. whereby they would look into his reports of abductee victims and conduct their own level investigations. We have contacted the People newspaper to try and get further details, but to no avail. As yet, Truth Seekers has not contacted the M.o.D. - although this will be done soon. We have also tried to trace Mr. Morris with no success. If you know Mr. Morris, or his British UFO Studies Centre, please forward us the details so we may investigate this further and print the details.

THE GREAT COVERUP

Mobius, a representative of the Nexus Network clandestine group based in the States set up to expose the secrets and deceit vomited out by the U.S. Military and Intelligence agencies talks about the great coverup...

It is a long standing and well known fact that secrets are kept from public view by military institutions, governments and intelligence agencies. In the past, as well as today, 99% of these secrets have been hidden under the title of National Security, defined as secrets kept for the sake of a country and its defence against other maurauding countries. With the demise of the cold war though, most would think that certain secrets, some from over 40 years ago would now be made available for public scrutiny. This is certainly not the case.

MINDS ERASED OF MEMORIES

If anything, a ball started rolling many years ago that would enmesh anything that the afore mentioned groups were interested in. Today, these groups have even bigger reason to keep secrets from the public eye, and there is even evidence to suggest that certain countries collaborate in these secrets and keeping them hidden. Why? What could be so sensitive that people have their lives threatened and minds erased of memories just to keep a secret? Whatever it is, it must be something of groundshaking significance, and would certainly send ordinary people through the roof if they knew about it.

Now, if you are reading this magazine, then I can bet you are truly suspicious of the governments, military institutions and intelligence agencies, after all, they are made up of men and women like you and I, but with one major difference. They have an enormous amount of power at their disposal, and what does power do? It corrupts - without exception. Surely the days are gone when people used to look upon the governments and militaries with pride and admiration, as we see so much evidence of corruption these days.

TWILIGHT ZONE

For this article, we are going to step over the boundaries of normality and reality as we know it, and very truly enter into the twilight zone, a zone where the nightmares of man pale into insignificance next to the actual realities so very well hidden by the masters of secrets. I will not waste time going over the history of this game, for it goes way back beyond the Roswell crash of an alien spacecraft in 1947. Instead, we will take a look into the what is going on today.

I am taking a considerable risk by writing this article, that I am well aware of, but I am sick of the fact that so many people carry on with their lives each day, living in a false sense of reality ignorant to the sinister aspects of our fellow man. To reproduce the words of Bill Cooper "get out there and find the facts yourself, tell your friends and family, we have got to get the control back into the hands of the people...". Please don't misunderstand me, there is a lot of good going on in the world at the moment as well, and we are fortunate enough to have some very benevolent and spiritual alien races guiding us towards a wonderful new age, but first we must stop the corruption at hand, and the best way to do that is through information, talking and the grouping together of interested people.

STEALTH BOMBER

Lets start the engine.

Obviously you have heard about the Stealth Bomber, and maybe you have heard of the Aurora project. Well, the Stealth does work on principles devised by alien minds, or rather, the technology involved was gained by the study by top military scientists of recovered crashed alien spacecraft. The Aurora is also a super secret project, or it was at one time. What most people do not realise about the Aurora is it is in fact a spacecraft. It can take off like a jet fighter, and totally leave the atmosphere in about 3 minutes. It is not designed for lengthy space travel - it is not even designed to travel as far as the moon. It is mainly a prototype for an even more incredible piece of hardware. Both the Stealth bomber and the Aurora are just covers for this super craft. It is known as the BEAM SHIP. This is the monster project.

BEAM SHIP

Although the Beam Ship has been a topic of debate in closed UFO research circles for sometime now, the concepts up until now on how it works are all wrong. It does in fact use a very technologically advanced form of propulsion, namely light.

It uses a drive which is based on the extraction of photons (photons are the etheric particles that light is made up from). An intense beam of laser light is fired through a cylindrical tube and then this beam is dispersed by a coil supposed to generate a gravitron field. This acts as a type of photon converter which then turns the random photons into tachyons.

FASTER THAN LIGHT

Now it may seem to you that we are entering into the realm of science fiction, as up until now, tachyons (faster than light particles) have only been theorized to exist by quantum mathematics, but these tachyon generators have been developed from the drives of recovered alien vehicles. The beam Ship houses some very sophisticated weaponry, for what purpose is currently unknown.

Its shape is that of the typical cigar shaped object, and its propulsion techniques are of a different kind to those of the saucer shaped and triangular shaped UFO's commonly seen. This is because the American military have found themselves in the fortunate position of recovering alien craft from more than one civilization, and these civilizations do use differing modes of propulsion, although most work on the general unified field mode, using gravity for long and short burst space travel.

NEGATIVE GREYS

Many have wondered why the Americans have been able to capture so many crashed craft, and how the hell did they crash in the first place? Well, the answer is not very nice. When the American government went into a treaty with the negative greys, as part of the treaty, the military were given a weapon that would ostensibly knock UFO's out of the sky, with the exception of the negative greys - as their craft worked on entirely different principles. By giving this weapon to the Americans, the greys were basically putting their stamp of ownership on the human race. The weapon was fairly easy to duplicate, and worked on very similar principles to earth based radar systems. Although we at Nexus are not sure of the mechanics of how the weapon brings them down, we do know that it generates a field which reverses the field of anti-gravity keeping the UFO's up in the air, thereby making the craft fall to earth as would a stone in normal gravity.

RENEGADE SIRIANS

This of course made the negative (Zeta Reticulum) greys extremely happy, until the negative Orions and renegade Sirians lashed back at the greys by spreading a form of virus into their habitats. How this was done is not known, but it is the main reason why they have been leaving a lot of the Earth based installations. The virus basically degrades their bodies and they waste away. This lash back was performed during the late 1950's, and the Zeta Reticulum greys have basically become outcasts of their own race because of the virus, unable to return to their home and unable to live without.... Certain genetic material from human beings. Hence the nasty abduction scenarios that some people have been a part of. It seems that we humans hold a biological chemical within us that will slow down the virus.

ABDUCTIONS

Not all abductions are malicious in intent. There is a grand scheme at work upgrading the human body and spirit. That later.

While all this was going on, the Americans were happily taking pot shots at any UFO they could detect, and were getting great results, until they started messing with the big boys. The Earth is currently being surveyed and visited by fifteen known and catalogued races, and two unknown races - one of which is the triangular shaped craft now being seen all over the world, making a big show at Belgium a few years ago. These beings controlling the triangular craft have not been on the scene for very long, only about eight years, slowly increasing their numbers.

CROP CIRCLES

They are the ones responsible for the movement from simple crop circles to complicated formations. They are here for the benefit of mankind and to push our evolution forwards. They do not tolerate the military or the secret societies and governments (controllers). They do not tolerate any of the lesser negative races and work with the benevolent factors. They are very powerful in the cosmic equation, and represent the higher councils.

The reptilian equalizers work for them. They will meet force with force, and will pave the way for the higher intelligences to come forward, of which time is nearing. The American government is now very involved with genetic experimentation. The majority of this research is done at the Dulce base where vagrants are taken off the streets and taken below for experimentation. Up until a year ago, the negative greys were involved with a lot of the experiments, but as mentioned previously, they are leaving to go to an unknown destination.

These vagrants are tampered with and then shipped out to the bases on Mars for slave purposes. This is not done by the greys, but by the secret government in preparation for Alternative 3. Mankind is shortly due for mass landings of the benevolent factors. The authorities know about this, and their plan is to convince the public that an invasion is at hand. Worldwide martial law will be declared and Alternative 3 will be put into play. The authorities have overlooked a great many things though. Their plans will grind to a halt. The benevolent factors have taken their plans into consideration and will be dealt with accordingly.

ALIEN GUEST

BY DON ALLEN

Three star tells all.....

While I was in Phoenix Arizona, at the Alternate Alien and New Age convention, I met Tim, (Mr.. UFO Beckley) the author of the UFO Magazine, called UFO UNIVERSE. He seems like a very nice person, and I enjoy reading his magazine. One of the articles in his Oct-Nov 1991 issue of his magazine, had to do with an unidentified 3 star general. Here are some of the points he made; In regards to the book, (The Roswell Incident) I was given some articles to look at, and was asked to participate in the "AWARENESS PROGRAM", which is a means of disseminating alien contact to the public. Although I had turned this down, I later was shown some articles, a tape and still photographs. In these I saw the alien craft, the frozen alien bodies, (from the Roswell site) and the live alien which is a guest of the US Government.

300 YEARS OLD

There have been several UFO crashes over the years. The aliens really have no "invasion" planned for this planet. They have visited on and off here, for thousands of years. Our US guest is over 300 years old. The aliens use about 55% of their brain capacity, or ability; they do have DNA. The alien which is a guest of the US Government, is 5'3 tall, weighs 96 lbs. has a large head (hairless) and large slanted eyes. Some of the aliens abilities include moderate telepathy and telekinesis. Cattle, as well as humans have been used in alien and US research for various biological applications. Most humans are not hurt in the research and experimentation. Some however have died due to complications and downright carelessness. Several cross breed young have been born to both human females and alien females. We humans are fully biological with most visiting aliens. Some we are not. (more than one type or species has visited our planet) The US and Britain have made a secret treaty agreement, with the aliens, in exchange for technology, and so-called "recon" missions, during times of human conflict.

INTERFERE WITH SOCIETY

Aliens agree to stay out of human wars, and not to interfere with society. Also, there are special "teams" which are designated to, eradicate, discredit, harass and trump-up charges to control those humans which experience contacts or visitations from aliens, including also those who make verifiable sightings. The alien crafts have been more-or-less copied by top scientific experts, and are functional. The Awareness Program (mentioned before) was designed to inform the public gradually, in a systematic, logical way. This is a joint governmental-and-alien program. It is coupled with the increased alien-human abductions and contacts. If done correctly there will be little or no panic or resistance. The worlds governments will retain control, avoiding chaos. In some of the reports it was noted that our children were mentioned as some of the cargo on the alien space crafts. There are over a million missing children every year in the US alone.

DARKSIDE

The aliens take about 2,200 a year from the US and other countries combined. The rest of the children are due to mankind's Darkside. The children are used in several ways; Biological, to educate and return; Experimentation, disease study, the same as adults. Implants are being used on the humans taken aboard the alien crafts and returned. Some of these implants are microscopic in size, (and smaller) which influence the growth function and learning capabilities of the individuals. The A.P. (Awareness Program) calls for the funding of movies, television series and specials, and books. These will be about friendly alien contacts. There are disks, triangles and oblong-shaped craft. They range from 30 ft, for the smaller recon disc, to over 730 ft, for the larger mother disc, (or flying saucers, if you will...) The triangle shaped craft are 210 ft. in diameter. The oblong shaped craft is the really big one of the 3. The only one ever found by the military was in the late 60's; it measured 1,100 ft. long with a circumference of 310 ft. There is some noise made, however, all craft are almost totally silent. Lets get rid of all the secrecy shit, its time we took the bastards by the throat and got it all in the open. Good luck!!

Message From A'star?

Where were you when "they" gave their first televised message? Can you remember those immortal words. Although never disproven this incident has never been repeated. Was it a joke, we give you the opportunity to decide with the transcribed text.

The date was November 26th, 1977. On that evening at twelve minutes past five a mysterious voice broke into the news bulletin being read on Southern ITV. It lasted five and a half minutes and was heard by viewers in London, Oxford, Andover, Winchester and Southampton. The newscaster, Ivor Mills, could still be seen reading his script, but the voice that was heard was obviously not the one that was scheduled.

Although, later, the occurrence was said to have been a prank, five transmitters had been 'taken over' simultaneously without the IBA engineers who monitored Southern ITV being aware of the fact. They were eventually alerted by the military but were unable to suppress the voice which, according to BBC officials, 'sounded deep, as though coming through water'. The official electric dials and instruments showed nothing different from the normal, so it would appear that Earth electricity was not being used and the power was coming from another source. Despite feverous attempts to quell it, the voice continued until it had completed its 'message'.

The words of Gramaha are now re-spoken.

This is the voice of Gramaha, the representative of the Asta Galactic Command, speaking to you. For many years now you have seen us as lights in the skies. We speak to you now in peace and wisdom as we have done to your brothers and sisters all over your planet Earth. We come to warn you of the destiny of your race and your worlds, so that you may communicate to your fellow beings the course you must take to avoid the disasters which threaten your world, and the beings in our worlds around you.

This is in order that you may share in the great awakening as the planet passes into the new Age of Aquarius. The New Age can be a time of great peace and evolution for your race, but only if your rulers are made aware of the evil forces that can overshadow their judgements.

Be still now and listen, for your chance may not come again. For many years your scientists, governments and generals have not heeded our warnings. They have continued to experiment with the evil forces of what you call nuclear energy. Atomic bombs can destroy the Earth, and the beings of your sister worlds, in a moment. The wastes from atomic power systems will poison your planet for many thousands of your years to come.

We, who have followed the path of evolution for far longer than you, have long since realised that atomic energy is always directed against life. It has no peaceful application. Its use and research into its use must be ceased at once, or you all risk destruction. All weapons of evil must be removed.

The time of conflict is now past. The race of which you are a part may proceed to the highest planes of evolution if you show yourselves worthy to do so. You have but a short time to learn to live together in peace and goodwill.

Small groups all over the planet are learning this, and exist to pass on the light of the dawning New Age to you all. You are free to accept or reject their teachings, but only those who learn to live in peace will pass to the higher realms of spiritual evolution.

Hear now the voice of Gramaha, the representative of the Asta Galactic Command, speaking to you. Be aware also that there are many false prophets and guides operating in your world. They will suck your energy from you - the energy you call money - and will put it to evil ends, giving you worthless dross in return.

Your inner divine self will protect you from this. You must learn to be sensitive to the voice within that can tell you what is truth, and what is confusion, chaos and untruth. Learn to listen to the voice of truth which is within you, and you will lead yourselves on to the path of evolution.

This is our message to our dear friends. We have watched you growing for many years, as you, too, have watched our lights in the skies. You know now that we are here, and that there are more beings on and around your Earth than your scientists admit.

We are deeply concerned about you and your path towards the light, and will do all we can to help you. Have no fear. Seek only to know yourselves, and live in harmony with the ways of your planet Earth.

We of the Asta Galactic Command thank you for your attention. We are now leaving the planes of your existence. May you be blessed by the supreme love and truth of the cosmos."

Are you willing to listen to your inner self? To make the changes of adjustment to the quickening love energies of the New Age? Whatever your position in society, we all have a personal choice.

TYPES OF EXTRATERRESTRIAL VISITORS

By DAVID HOUSE

ALIEN TYPE 1: The Greys. Of this type there are several sub-types. All tend to appear greyish in color and for this reason are referred to as "greys."

GREY TYPE A: This is the type most commonly referred to as the greys. Also known as Zeta Reticuli from the Zeta Reticular star system (the Bernard star) neighboring the Orion area. They function in a mode that is apparently military in nature with a rigidly defined social structure that holds science and "conquering worlds" to be the prime movers. They are normally about 4.5 ft tall with large heads and black "wrap around" eyes. They have limited facial features, slit mouth and no nose to speak of. They have evolved beyond the need for reproductive systems or digestive systems and reproduce by cloning. Their genetics are partly based on insectoidal genetics.

Their science deals largely with the study of other life forms and genetic engineering. They have supposedly had a part to play in the alteration of human genetics over thousands of years. It seems that they may be trying to cross breed with humans in order to create a "mixture race" that would be better than either. (I've read that they are a dying species, that have cloned so much that now, with each successive cloning, the species grows weaker. They are trying to infuse new life into their species by creating the mixed breed.)

There seem to be two main social classes. One is the more hawkish and is more abrupt, crude and blunt. The more dove-like ones are more refined and capable of a more business-like behavior towards humans, and prefer to use more "diplomatic" behavior to gain control over human's. This type of Grey is what I believe is being referred to as the "Orange" class of Greys.

They seem to be emotionless (by human standards) and therefore are seen as cruel in their treatment of human beings. They are able to take human lives without any regard for that individual. They apparently can use certain substances of the human body for their sustenance and therefore appear to be carnivorous in regards to humans. (I also read that they extract fluid from some part of the human brain during intense emotional response [fear] and are able to use it like a recreational drug.)

It is my understanding that these greys are actually servants to a master race of reptilian-type aliens and are trying to prepare the earth for their arrival by gaining control over the earth through many means. They tend to enjoy the feeling of freedom they have on earth, away from their masters and would desire the help of humans in confrontations with the reptilians...which appears to be a consideration for the near future (mid 90's.)

These greys have their best known bases in New Mexico and Nevada but are also known to have bases in many countries of the world.

GREY TYPE B: Tall Greys from Orion. Usually about 7 to 8 ft. tall (reports often exaggerate their height as being 9 to 12 ft.) with facial feature somewhat similar to grey type A with the exception of the large nose found on type B greys. These greys also have technologies that allow them to perform certain actions that appear "miraculous." These greys are less viscous towards humans than type A greys (but are still considered "hostile".) They tend to influence more through political controls and negotiated agreements with those in power. Their main bases seem to be in the Aleutian Islands.

These are the type seen not long ago in Eastern Russia.

GREY TYPE C: These are the shortest of the greys and tend to be about 3.5 ft. tall. Their facial features are very similar to the Zeta Reticuli greys and are of the same "root race.". They are just as hostile to humans as the Zetas. They are from a star system near the shoulder of Orion called Bellatrix.

ALIEN TYPE 2: THE REPTILIANS: A genetics akin to reptiles, these are highly advanced entities but viewed as being of a negative, hostile or dangerous disposition since they regard humans as a totally inferior race. They would perceive us much the way we would perceive a herd of cattle. They are carnivorous in regard to humans. There is supposedly a "driven" planetoid or asteroid inhabited by 30 million of these lizard-folk that is to enter our solar system in the mid 90's if the present schedule is kept.

They consider earth to be their own ancient outpost and would expect to have complete control of the entire planet upon their return. Their own planet is becoming unable to adequately support life and they need somewhere else to live. These are the aliens who are served by the type A greys.

ALIEN TYPE 3: HUMAN TYPE ALIENS

HUMAN TYPE A: These are of a genetic base similar to humans of earth. They appear of "normal" height (5-6ft?) and tend to be fair-skinned with blonde hair. These entities have been abducted by the greys or are the offspring of abductees and have been trained by the greys as servants. These entities are totally subservient to the greys.

HUMAN TYPE B: These are aliens of similar genetics to earth humans and also, it seems, of the humans that serve the greys. These are from the Pleiades and are also of the blonde, fair-skinned appearance. This type is of a genuine highly evolved, spiritual, benevolent variety and have a kinship toward humans and are the only aliens to be truly trusted by earth humans at this time. They had at one time offered to be of assistance to earth leaders in dealing with the alien situation here but were rebuffed and so have taken a kind of "hands off" approach for the time being. These aliens are supposedly the forefather race of humankind. These are apparently not on earth much at this time due to serious problems in the area of their home.

HUMAN TYPE C: Very little is known about these. They are supposedly another of the highly evolved, spiritual type of great benevolence to earth humans. I understand that their appearance is similar to other human-type aliens. They are from Sirius and don't appear to be much involved with earth happenings at this time other than being concerned about the Grey scenario. They could desire to be of help to humans.

There are other known human type aliens of this "more highly spiritually evolved" nature that are apparently aware of the situation on earth and considering some possible course of action. These are from Arcturus and Vega. There are references to other entities that enter our universe from other dimensions, but I have not seen any constant in these alleged reports yet. Earth is certainly of great interest!
